ITALIAN TAKE GONDAR NEAR LAKE TANA IN NEW DRIVE

Truck Column Moves Into Strategic City 20 Miles North of Headwaters of Blue Nile—British Power Interests There.

ACHILLE STARACE COMMANDS FORCE

He, as Secretary-General of Fascist Party, Is Mussolini's Chief Aid—Caravan Trails Blocked in Rich Ethiopian Region.

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

WITH THE NORTHERN ITALIAN ARMY, Gondar, Ethiopia, March 31.—This important strategic city at the head of Lake Tana fell into the hands of an Italian truck column led by Achille Starace, secretary-general of the Fascist party, today.

The trucks moved southward along the Sudanese border, cutting off all Northern Ethiopia from supplies which previously had been delivered over caravan trails from the Sudan.

Gondar is 20 miles north of Lake Tana, headwaters of the Blue Nile and center of British power interests. This is one of the richest regions in Ethiopia.

It is recalled there were two treaties of 1906, among Britain, Italy and France, and of 1925, between Britain and Italy, governing this territory west of the main Northern front. These treaties gave Italy a zone of influence in the territory, but specified that Italy should not construct dams to obstruct the water flowing from Lake Tana into Egypt. Britain also had the right to build a road from the Sudan toward the lake.

Like Graziani's Column.

The motor column was modeled after that of Gen. Rodolfo Graziani which, in the south, moved up from Dolo to Negelli to break up Ras Desta's army several weeks ago.

The northern column, like that of the soldiers under Gen. Graziani, had the advantage in its operations of flat, desert-like ground.

The Starace command has moved farther than the column which fought the Danakils under Gen. Oreste Mariotti last November—moving on mules through the Danakil Desert—but it traveled about the same distance as did Gen. Graziani's command in his semi-circular sweep—that is, about 155 miles.

Like Gen. Graziani's drive, it has been made in a huge semi-circle, starting originally at Asmara, and circling back through Eritrea up to the border at Umaga, which is only a few miles from Kassala, the regular lake entry port of the British Sudan.

Other Recent Victories.

The way for the maneuver was paved by victories of the last six weeks all along the northern front from Amba Aradam through Tembien Province and the Takkaze River area, allowing the Fourth Army Corps on the extreme right of the line to penetrate deep beyond Setit and Semien and providing perfect left flank protection for the northern motor column.

The capture of Gondar coincides in the general picture with considerable activity on the left extremity of the northern line where reports have it that Emperor Haile Selassie himself has taken the field in the general vicinity of Quonan, in a last desperate effort to hold the Italians in their advance following the victory at Amba Aradam Feb. 30.

The negotiations for the Gondar movement were made with great care and skill. For weeks the outer division of the army searched for suitable trucks—most of them American-built—commanding about 200 new machines in Massawa alone.

The soldiers who made the advance were selected with extreme care. All of them are in fine physical condition and are accustomed to the tropics.

Speech by Starace.

Evidence of the importance of Gondar is the fact that Starace came from Rome to lead the column. Sir Charles H. P. Prendergast, Minister of War, in the Fascist Government, made a speech in the troops on the evening before the column crossed the Setit River.

"This is the most risky, most difficult, and most important venture of the campaign," declared Starace. "Don't waste a shot. Fire coolly and deadly when necessary."

"We must save ammunition. We

MRS. MARYON HEWITT INDICTED ON HER DAUGHTER'S CHARGE

Action Intended to Hasten Extra-Judicial Trial of Mrs. Maryon, Whom She Is Ill.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt was named today in a county grand jury indictment charging her with mayhem in connection with the sterilization of her 21-year-old daughter, Anna Cooper Hewitt.

Mrs. Hewitt, seriously ill in San Francisco, is already charged with mayhem in a police warrant.

The grand jury action, attorneys said, was intended to speed her extradition to face trial here.

The jury which returned the indictment late last night, heard testimony of Miss Hewitt, her attorney, Russell P. Tyler; Police Inspector George Engler, who signed the police warrants, and Anne Lindsay, a nurse in the hospital where the operation was performed.

Existing mayhem warrants accuse Mrs. Hewitt and Drs. Samuel G. Boyd and Tilton E. Tillman. All three are defendants in a $500,000 damage action brought by the young heiress who asserted the operation was intended to insure her mother a continued benefit from a trust fund of which the girl is now chief beneficiary.

"I do not think I am authorized to interfere and I will have to deny counsel's motion (for a stay of execution.)"

Execution Hour 8 P. M.

The hour set for his execution is 8 o'clock, but a Philadelphia gangster-killer will give Hauptmann a few more moments of life.

Justice Trenchard, referring to the repudiated "confession" of Paul H. Wendel on which the plea was largely based, declared: "They (the Wendel papers) do not justify any arrest of the execution."

"These papers," the Justice, who presided over Hauptmann's Flemington trial, said, "do not justify any rule to show cause why a new trial should not be granted, much less granting a new trial. It seems pretty plain to me that this (Wendel) confession is incredible on its face, out of harmony with the known facts of the case, and without the slightest corroboration with respect to matters which could easily be corroborated."

"I do not think I am authorized to interfere and I will have to deny counsel's motion (for a stay of execution.)"

Pending Negotiations.

This was said to be the major offer in the long document which Von Ribbentrop took to London.

Hitter considers that the negotiations for a "more peaceful peace" ought to be completed within the four-month period. If not, the possibility remained open that the armistice could be extended.

Von Ribbentrop and his staff occupied two airplanes. The size of the delegation indicated that the Germans were prepared for long negotiations.

The Locarno proposal of an international police force on German soil apparently was rejected.

Check-Up on Head.

He told police the bomb he constructed at his home, 6209 Enright avenue, consisted of the handle of a cooking utensil, which he filled with powder from 12 shotgun shells.

The bomb, placed against the side of the garage section of the laundry building, caused damage estimated at $150.

The statement explained that Head accused Chappel because of the latter's police record. It was expected that Chappel, who resides at 720 Eastgate avenue, would be released shortly.

Head appeared at the scene of the bombing and told police he had been crossing a vacant lot next door when the explosion knocked him down. He said Chappel and several other men ran through the lot to a waiting automobile. There was mutual recognition, Head related, and he added that Chappel threatened him with a revolver. Chappel was arrested at his home later that night.

TOWNSEND IN ROW WITH AUTHOR OF HIS PENSION BILL

Article Accuses Congressman of Using Organization to Further Political Ambitions.

'TALKS LIKE A FOOL,' McGROARTY RETORTS

Founder Later Announces Reorganization Plan With Board of Directors in Charge.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Building,
WASHINGTON, March 31.—

The gravest quarrel in the history of the Townsend pension movement broke yesterday as a House committee marked time in its investigation.

Representative John Steven McGroarty (Dem.), Tujunga, Cal., who in his biography explains that he is the "poet laureate of California," described his old friend, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, in language that was anything but lyrical.

"When Dr. Townsend accuses me of political ambitions," said McGroarty, "he is talking like a fool—just like a fool."

This plain-spoken prose was uttered as a result of an article under the name of Dr. Townsend, which appeared yesterday in the Townsend National Weekly.

Rebuking McGroarty for appealing to Townsend Republicans in California to register as Democrats, Dr. Townsend said that "National headquarters cannot undertake to endorse the private political ambitions of Representative McGroarty."

Reply from Congressman.

Said McGroarty: "Apparently the doctor believes he is privileged to be active in politics but that nobody else may be. His attitude and his unaccountable accusations may do the movement some harm, but I believe it will progress in spite of him."

"I didn't want to come to Congress and I don't want to stay. I was surprised and disgusted when the voters sent me here by a 12,000 majority."

The side line battle between Dr. Townsend and Representative McGroarty checked those opponents of the pension plan who are hoping the current House investigation of OARP, Ltd., will shatter the organization and remove it as a political threat.

Dr. Townsend is the father of the $200-a-month pension plan for the "old folks," but it was Representative McGroarty who first moved to translate the plan into legislation.

As author of the old-age pension bill and head of the Townsend bloc in the House, the white-haired, 74-year-old McGroarty is even better known than Robert E. Clements, "co-founder" of the Townsend plan, who recently resigned as secretary-treasurer of OARP.

The break between Townsend and Clements, according to reports, came after a long-standing feud. On the surface, however, everything between them has been serene. Clements the other day referring to Dr. Townsend as a "great old guy."

McGroarty's remark yesterday about Townsend's activity in politics was taken to mean statements attributed to the Long Beach physician, from time to time, such as one recently that he favored Senator William E. Borah of Idaho for the presidency, and one prior to that favoring a third political party.

The Townsend weekly has disavowed both statements.

McGroarty said that Dr. Townsend had abandoned the original plan—payment of the $200 pensions with money raised by a 2 per cent tax on all transactions—in favor of one suggested by Sheridan Downey, Townsend's counsel.

The Downey plan, McGroarty said, would involve the issuance of "billions of dollars worth of additional tax-exempt bonds in lieu of the transactions tax."

Reorganization Announced.

Dr. Townsend announced today he was placing the management of his organization in the hands of a board of several trusted, proven leaders of recognized ability and loyalty in our movement." He also announced he was "presented to the movement" 90 per cent of the profits of the organization's official paper, the Townsend National Weekly, and that his salary would be paid out of the paper's earnings, thus permitting him to serve Old Age Revolving Pensions, Ltd., without compensation from that organization.

Townsend said national headquarters would be transferred from Washington to Chicago, and a second national convention of Townsend clubs would be called before the political conventions meet in June.

To assist him on the board of directors the following have been asked to serve: Gomer Smith, Oklahoma City, as vice-president; Gilmore Young, San Francisco, as national secretary; Dr. Clinton Wunder, New York, as Eastern regional director; J. B. Kiefer, Chicago, as central regional director; Nathan J. Roberts, Jacksonville, Fla., as Southern regional director, and Alfred Wright, Cleveland, as State area manager for Ohio.

Hauptmann Execution Scheduled for Tonight

BERLINGER said Hauptmann told him, "I am not afraid to die."

Hauptmann told his guards, they reported: "I have saved three lives in my life, and they take mine on built-up evidence." His reference apparently was to his claim that he rescued three persons from drowning.

He was moved from the cell he has occupied since his arrival at the State prison on Feb. 16, 1935, to another cell. Warden Kimberling said this "is the usual procedure in case there is anything hidden in the cell."

Hauptmann was prepared for the chair this morning, a spot on his head being closely shaved.

When Hauptmann walks in tonight at perhaps 8:20 o'clock he will see four rows of seats, an aisle dividing them into two sections.

Here will sit the execution jurors—official witnesses. There are chairs for 32—four in a row on either side of the aisle. Behind the chairs is space where others will be standing—as many, probably, as there is room for—when Hauptmann enters the death room a pace or two behind his spiritual adviser, The Rev. Mr. Matthiesen, is pastor of the same church where once served the clergyman father of Wendel.

On the opposite side of the room, against the far wall, will stand three doctors who will be called upon to pronounce Hauptmann of the execution.

Court Denies Clemency.

Hauptmann's fate was sealed yesterday with the brief announcement that the Court of Pardons had denied Hauptmann's clemency appeal. It was the second refusal within 10 weeks to interfere.

The only message the doomed man sent to his wife, the minister continued, was "greetings" and the admonition not to worry.

Hardy had news of the court's action been made known than the Governor announced, through an aid, that the decision of the court was "final" and that "there will be no second reprieve."

Fisher, chief of Hauptmann's defense counsel since Edward J. Reilly retired after Hauptmann's conviction at Flemington early last year, broke it to Hauptmann the news of the refusal of the Pardons Court to interfere with the execution.

Hardy had news of the court's action been made known than the Governor announced, through an aid, that the decision of the court was "final" and that "there will be no second reprieve."

Hauptmann still has hope, even though he knows the Governor has said there will be no second reprieve. When I told him that all hope appeared gone, he said: "I can't believe it. What are they doing about the man who confessed to the crime?"

The condemned man's reference was to Wendel, who is held in jail on a formal charge that he murdered the Lindbergh baby.

Hauptmann apparently had been told of the Wendel development when his wife visited him earlier in the day. He was not aware, however, that Wendel had admittedly repudiated an alleged "confession."

He is said to have made, and that prosecuting officers had openly expressed themselves as satisfied Wendel had no knowledge of the crime.

Warden Can Delay Execution.

There was one definite way in which the electrocution could be delayed. That was through a decision by the prison Warden to postpone the execution until later in the week. Such an action was within his power, for the death sentence merely designated "the week of March 30."

Tonight was fixed for Hauptmann to die because Tuesday is the usual execution date. However, the previous execution date was fixed for Friday, and even a late hour Saturday night would be possible.

Col. Kimberling, who has had frequent talks with Hauptmann during the more than a year the Bronx carpenter has been in the prison, gave no indication that any change in plans was contemplated, or that it even was under consideration.

Wendel in Court.

Wendel pleaded not guilty to a charge of embezzlement today. The disbarred lawyer was not arraigned on the murder charge preferred by Chief County Detective James S. Kirkham with the kidnaping as a basis.

County Judge James S. Turp remanded Wendel to the Mercer County jail without fixing bail because of the unbalance capital charge against him. Wendel told the court that he had already paid back a large part of the $3700 he was ac-and merit. I don't want to get out any other way."

Here Mrs. Rosegrant, pale and garbed in black, began to weep and tears streamed down Rosegrant's face as he continued:

Refused to Discuss Case.

"I don't want to discuss my case, please don't ask me about it. I'm going to live my own life out there in prison, and I'm not going to join any prison clique. You needn't worry about that," he added, turning to his wife. "They could leave the gates open every day and they would find me there until they told me to leave."

From the dining room the party went to Rosegrant's room where he shaved. With the short stubble on his cheeks and chin went his black mustache.

"They won't let me have it out there," he remarked wryly, as he started on the mustache, "so I'll beat them to it."

He was particularly anxious to know what clothing and equipment he would be allowed to take with him into the penitentiary, and was told he might have white shirts, underclothing, socks, black shoes, safety razor, tooth brush and tooth paste—not much more.

At 8 o'clock Mrs. Rosegrant went out to buy the permitted articles which were not already included in her husband's light luggage. When she returned, Marshal Dalton had taken charge of Rosegrant and was chatting with him and the Post-Dispatch reporter in the hotel room.

The Trip to the Prison.

After a few minutes, Marshal Dalton arose and Rosegrant made his farewell to his wife. Both were weeping. Accompanied by the Marshal and the reporter he left the room, went to the first floor and was taken in the Marshal's car to the penitentiary, only a few blocks away.

White-faced and silent, he was searched at the outside gate. Then the door to the administration building closed behind him. Glancing at a group of prisoners who were at work in the outer office, he said: "Well, I'm entering on a new life now. I do it with strong heart."

At the "round gate" inside the building, Marshal Dalton turned him over to Capt. E. W. Lyle of the prison guard, remarking, "I have a customer for you."

Rosegrant waved farewell to the Marshal and the correspondent as he was taken into a room to be dressed in.

His entry into the prison set a new record for the prison population, 4768 prisoners in an institution built to accommodate about 2500. The number 47,961 was assigned to him. Formalities of dressing in included assignment to a cell, which he will occupy with other prisoners, and a detail to a regular prison task. It was stated he would probably go to work tomorrow at a "tomcat," convicts' name for a power sewing machine in one of the penitentiary shops.

Rosegrant had $18.75 in his pockets when he entered the prison. The only message the doomed man sent to his wife, the minister continued, was "greetings" and the admonition not to worry.

cused of converting from a client's estate.

Grand Jury Bars Prosecutor.

Prosecutor Erwin E. Marshall said the Mercer County (Trenton) grand jury foreman had asked him and his secretary to leave the room today while the grand jury considered the case of Wendel. The foreman, Allynne M. Freeman, a Trenton insurance man, made the request that Marshall leave a few minutes after Ellis H. Parker, Chief of Burlington County Detectives, who obtained Wendel's "confession," went into the grand jury room.

Prosecutor Marshall, who previously had expressed the opinion that Wendel had no connection with the Lindbergh crime, said he did not "know what they wanted to discuss about the case, but they asked him to leave."

"It is customary for the Prosecutor to come there to assist the grand jury, but it seems they don't want me there now," he added.

Gifford Says A. T. & T. Lobby Is "Not Very Wicked"

Corporation President Thinks It Matter of Degree—Sees No Harm in Writing Legislator's Speeches.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—H's testimony interrupted by outbursts of laughter, President Walter S. Gifford outlined for the Communications Commission today lobbying policies of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which he described as "not very wicked."

The audience laughed as Becker continued: "You think there are degrees of wickedness in this business? Do you think giving theater tickets might be a little bit wicked?" Gifford's reply was lost in a gale of laughter.

Meeting Legislators.

Becker then asked the telephone president whether he should have been allowed to question him regarding what types of lobbying were "proper" and "improper."

Opening his examination by calling that Gifford had expressed faith in "American political democracy," Becker asked: "Do you think that one of the most important things in maintaining a political democracy is that we should properly and rigidly safeguard the legislative process?"

"I agree to that," answered Gifford.

Becker then traced through numerous lobbying methods asking Gifford whether he approved of them.

A Matter of Degree.

"Do you think it is all right to give dinners and theater tickets to legislators?" the attorney asked.

"That may be the only way you can make the acquaintance of legislators," Gifford answered. "I might give a man a cigar. I think it is a matter of degree."

"How about theater tickets?"

At another point, Becker asked whether Gifford thought it proper to have dinners and theater tickets to legislators?" the attorney asked.

Like this contention, all of Rowe's arguments were based on technical grounds, all of which had been enumerated previously in the original appeal and overruled by the Court.

Felix McDonald in Prison.

When Rosegrant entered the prison this morning he joined one of his co-defendants, Felix McDonald, who is serving a 10-year term for armed robbery in the attempted kidnaping of Oscar Johnson in August, 1931, less than four months after the Kelley abduction. McDonald's appeal from a 60-year sentence in the Kelley case is pending.

At the "round gate" inside the building, Marshal Dalton turned him over to Capt. E. W. Lyle of the prison guard, remarking, "I have a customer for you."

Rosegrant waved farewell to the Marshal and the correspondent as he was taken into a room to be dressed in.

VERA STREZ SAYS PISTOL WENT OFF DURING STRUGGLE

Her Lawyer Develops Point
—Both She and Gebhardt Had Hold of Weapon,
She Declares.

SHE IS THE ONLY DEFENSE WITNESS

Declares She Took Revolver From Bureau Drawer When He Advanced on Her — Defense Rests.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 31.—The defense in the first degree murder trial of Vera Stretz rested late today after she had told her story of the shooting of Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, as she said, during an early morning struggle in his bedroom.

After Assistant District Attorney Miles O'Brien completed his cross-examination, Samuel Leibowitz, defense lawyer, asked only two questions of the defendant. Miss Stretz was the only witness for the defense.

Dr. Gebhardt, Miss Stretz said, attacked her, she said, and she took a revolver from a bureau drawer.

"How far away was he?" asked O'Brien. "Two arm lengths."

Then she testified: "I threatened him. I said, 'Let me out or I'll do something desperate.'

"What did he do?" She said he cursed her. Then she continued: "He clutched at my hand. He said I wouldn't dare. He pulled me toward him. I pulled away."

"Did you struggle?" "Yes, he must have moved toward the bed."

"Did he get on the bed?" "Yes."

Judge Questions Her.

Judge Cornelius Collins asked: "Was a shot fired before he got on the bed?" "Yes."

Judge Collins asked how far away was Gebhardt? "My arm was extended full length."

"Where was he?" "Near the bed."

"What did he do after that first shot?" "He staggered back toward the bed."

Gebhardt, she said, called her to his room on the ground that he was ill. When she began shouting for an electric pad, she continued: "He was holding my elbow. He caught it and kissed my neck."

O'Brien asked her to demonstrate how Gebhardt held her. She did so, then covered her face with her hands.

"Did you object?" O'Brien asked. "I did object."

She gave way to tears again, and a recess was called.

The defendant testified yesterday that Dr. Gebhardt lured her to his room the night she killed him, Nov. 12, on a pretext he was sick and needed her help. She resided in another apartment in the same building.

MAYOR M'NAIR CAUSES UPROAR AT TAX HEARING

Pittsburgh Official "Demands" Dropping of Surplus Levy, Debates Dignity With Committee.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—William N. McNair, the Democratic Mayor of Pittsburgh, almost turned the public hearing of the House Ways and Means Committee on the new tax bill into a riot this morning.

After an hour of heated debate with Democratic members of the committee, during which Chairman Doughton threatened to have him removed by a policeman, McNair defied the committee in a fiery outburst.

"Why all this dignity?" he cried. "I am the Mayor of a great industrial city and I have the right to come here and make this protest. I have a right to be heard and nobody shall stop me."

"But," shrilled Doughton, as he beat a tattoo with his gavel, "you must not interrupt members of Congress."

"They interrupt me. Why should I not interrupt them in return? That's only fair play."

Five Minutes of Shouting.

For five minutes Doughton and McNair yelled at each other, both talking at the same time.

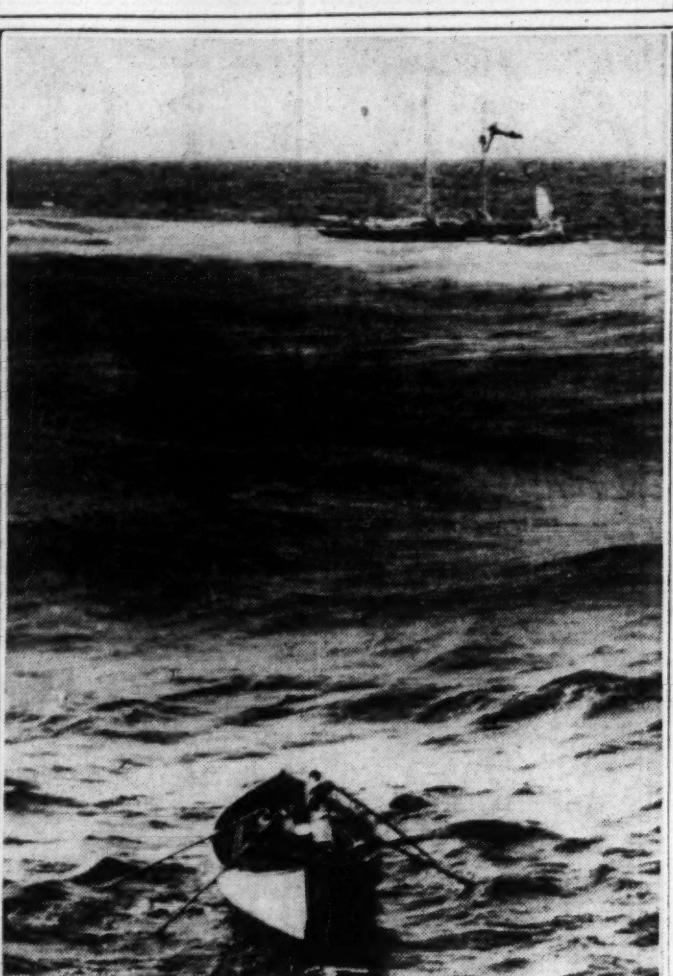

McNair is a tall, slender, smooth-shaven young man, with a mop of black hair and a dark, deeply-lined face. Elected as a Democrat, he has bitterly and violently opposed most of the New Deal policies.

"I'm here to protest this proposed tax on the surpluses of corporations, so far as Pittsburgh is concerned," he began. "You already take $100,000,000 a year from our city. If you pass this law a lot more money will come to Washington."

"I'm sure a lot of us hope so," put in Representative Dan A. Reed (Rep.), New York.

"Well, I'm here to beg you not to take the shirt off our back," McNair went on, "the City of Pittsburgh has a function to perform which is more important than that performed by this body."

A gasp of incredulity went round the high platform on which the 25 members of the committee were

The CCC, Floods, Reserves.

"I don't beg—I demand that this new tax be not imposed. Already you take $100,000,000 that might be paying wages in Pittsburgh. Now you want $50,000,000 more," McNair continued.

"Why the whole city government of Pittsburgh only costs $41,000,000. And the people get something for that money."

"If you prevent corporations in Pittsburgh from laying up reserves, what will happen to us if another flood comes?"

"Then you think that corporation surpluses in Pittsburgh are valuable," asked Representative Treadaway (Rep.), Massachusetts.

"Do I think so?" cried McNair. "Come out there and see the ruined miles—ruined by the floods, which were caused by the CCC boys—being rebuilt out of the surplus money of the corporations which own them."

"And we may have a new flood in 30 days. The boys in the CCC camps up on the headwaters of our rivers have made nice little parks out of the swamps and mountain-sides. They have dug gutters which lead the floodwaters right down into our rivers."

"Don't you favor flood control?" asked Representative Vinson (Dem.), Kentucky.

"Oh, that'll be 10 years too late,"

"The last Democratic platform is snapped McNair. "You'll build dams that may break when floods come. Anyway, nothing will help so long as the CCC boys are at work. Flood control, I'd rather you'd let us keep our own money."

Pennsylvania "Rebellion."

"It's a tradition in our state not to tax thrift and industry," he went on. "We had one rebellion in Pennsylvania—because of an attempt to collect unjust Federal taxes."

"I referred to the so-called 'whisky rebellion.'

The same feeling still exists among the people of Pennsylvania. We believe in the theory of Jefferson, that that Government is best which governs least."

"Did you know that $186,000,000 in PWA money went into the State of Pennsylvania?" asked Vinson.

"Does that include the 5 per cent cut for political purposes?" asked McNair. "You ought to see the boys paying it. At any rate I didn't get a cent of it."

Platform "Good as New."

"I was a member of the convention that wrote the last Democratic national platform," the Mayor continued. "We were strong for economy and cutting down Federal costs."

"Then you don't think the Democratic platform has been well carried out?" broke in Treadaway.

"Oh, that'll be 10 years too late,"

"The last Democratic platform is just as good as new," grinned McNair in return.

"Are you a single tax?" asked Vinson. "Single tax is a matter of economics and not of politics," replied the Mayor. "But in Pittsburgh we have abolished most taxes which exist in other cities. We don't have an income tax in the State of Pennsylvania—thank God for that."

"Did you know," asked Vinson, "that a total of $556,000,000 of Federal money has been poured into Pennsylvania?"

"I know nothing about it. I handled not a cent of it," returned the Mayor.

"Don't you know that millions of Federal money have been spent for relief?" continued Vinson. "Well, if you had left our money at home and not taken it down to Washington, there would have been no occasion for relief," came back the Mayor.

"Now I understand about Andy Mellon," said one Democratic member of the committee, half under his breath.

Charges Politics in Spending.

Leslie M. Johnston, Director of Public Works in Pittsburgh, charged half of the Federal money spent in Pennsylvania went into the hands of politicians.

Doughton wanted to know whether he thought "Pennsylvania was hurt or helped by expenditures of Federal money."

"There is no question but that it hurts the State," Johnston replied.

"I'm sure," Doughton said, "if Pennsylvania will tell the president that the State is taking care of its own relief problems, that he will be glad to get out of it."

Attorney on Corporation Tax.

Albert Hubschman, representing Bushman and Walsh, New York attorneys, asked the committee to differentiate in the corporation tax proposal between privately and publicly owned corporations. Privately owned corporations, in whose ownership the public does not have a chance to share, he argued, should be taxed under rates comparable to those on individuals.

So long as the tax rate on the earnings of a corporation is lower than the comparable tax rate on the individual owner of corporate stock, he said, the earnings of the corporation will accumulate within the corporate structure.

The principle of the proposed corporate tax, he went on, cannot be applied effectively "until the rates of tax distinguish the earnings of the publicly owned companies from the earnings of the privately owned companies."

GAMBLING INQUIRY AND VOTE REFORM URGED AT TAMPA

Grand Jury Which Returned Flogging Indictments Recommends Special Investigators.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TAMPA, Fla., March 31.—Apportionment of special investigators to go into the gambling situation here and drastic reforms in Tampa's election machinery were advocated yesterday in a report of the grand jury which previously returned indictments in the flogging cases.

Reporting on its inquiry into the background of the flogging cases, the jury reported that gambling "continued to be widespread because of no actual prosecution."

Arrests by the Sheriff of Hillsborough County, the jury pointed out, have not been followed by prosecutions, although "the small fry" have been "frozen out of business."

Gambling by "Limited Few."

Gambling now is in the hands of a "very limited few" the jury found, who are operating "in spite of a few stiff fines, well spread."

The jury suggested gambling establishments either be legalized or closed and stated that a few witnesses "would really have liked to tell the truth and open up about collections" but kept mum for fear of reprisals. The jury expressed the opinion that large amounts are being collected and in the past "a four-way division of large collections" was made.

Referring to the relationship between the gambling interests and "crooked elections" the jury stated that the gamblers could be circumvented by using men "above reproach" as registration officials and clerks and inspectors at elections.

The jury recommended that the County Commissioners employ two competent private investigators "whose duties shall be to gather information on gambling and all forms of vice" and on election irregularities. The investigators should be for the sole use of grand juries and accountable only to them nor could they be removed by any other body.

Drawing of Election Officials.

All election officials should be drawn by the Circuit Judge as juries are drawn, the grand jury recommended, while poll tax receipts should be presented when a voter appears for registration. As an alternative measure it recommended in the abolition of all poll taxes as a prerequisite to voting.

Recommendations, the jurors said, were justified in their minds "by the very bad conditions which have in the past prevailed and by a system that has been foisted upon the public by officials, who it is commonly known, do not represent the will of the majority of the citizens of this State and community."

"Then you don't think the Democratic platform has been well carried out?" broke in Treadaway.

"Oh, that'll be 10 years too late,"

"The last Democratic platform is just as good as new," grinned McNair in return.

"We must halt the Ethiopians in their tracks. This column must be like an electric live wire—death to the touch."

Starace told his men that there were no Ethiopian concentrations ahead on the proposed route but that they would meet bands of brigands who were hungry and would fight for supplies.

Starace made observations regarding the English view of Great Britain's interest in the Lake Tana region after expressing pride that Italy was a poor country and declaring that the people of poor countries were hard-muscled.

He suggested that rich people get "tumultuous indigestion" since "tumultuous minds" sometimes followed tumultuous digestions and this probably explained Great Britain's action in the Italian-Ethiopian situation.

Robert L. Kingsland, Who Has Disappeared From Wood River.

Creditors of Robert L. Kingsland, Wood River (Ill.) automobile dealer, whose disappearance last week first puzzled them and damaged dozens of his customers, are trying to find any assets he may have left behind to meet business and personal obligations estimated at more than $12,000.

Those chiefly concerned with the muddled condition of the books of the firm, thought to be prosperous until the owner suddenly departed, leaving the elaborate showroom as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard and his bank balance in the red, have been informed that they received mortgaged automobiles, and that down-payments and installments have gone into Kingsland's pocket. The automobiles, it was said, will be recovered by finance companies from which Kingsland had borrowed money, with the machines as security, while they were on his floor.

that after Kingsland had obtained titles to the machines, he had mortgaged them and kept the money. The finance companies also have claimed those machines which Kingsland left standing in the workshop of his sales agency.

Kingsland, who formerly operated automobile sales agencies in Southern Illinois and in St. Louis, established the business in Wood River about three years ago. About 50 years old, he was a skillful salesman, possessed of an attractive personality. With his wife and grown son, he made his residence in Wood River, but took little part in the social affairs of the town.

Until enforced absences were occasioned by illness two months ago, he devoted many hours a day to business, according to associates, and his firm to all appearances thrived. When the bookkeeper, Ed Smith, did not appear at the office Saturday, March 21, no suspicions arose. When Monday came, and Kingsland did not arrive at the show rooms, inquiry disclosed he had left town for an unannounced destination. Neither Kingsland nor his bookkeeper has since been seen in Wood River.

Important Books Missing.

An auditor, representing one creditor, was sent to examine the records of the business, but found that several important books were missing and was unable to begin to unravel the tangled figures or to estimate the total obligations of the company.

Residents of Wood River said that Kingsland's largest debt, which they estimated at nearly $15,000, was due Dr. Victor L. Gould of St. Louis. Dr. Gould, at his office at 281A Watson road, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the amount was about $2000 which Kingsland owed for medical services. The debt was secured by a note with the automobile firm as collateral, he said. The value of the security is problematical.

Governor Praised Mussolini's Financing; Gold Reserve $242,150,000 Last Dec. 31.

ROME, March 31.—Vincenzo Azzolini, governor of the Bank of Italy, reported today that the bank's gold reserve at the end of last year was 3,027,000,000 lire (the figure is currently quoted at 7,959 cents). This figure, he said, did not include the millions of lire worth of wedding rings and other gold objects "spontaneously" given to the Government and now entirely reserved by the state, nor did it include the foreign securities the state has received from Italian citizens through forcible conversion.

Azzolini asserted the bank was in a position to meet all war contingencies, and he urged the bank's stockholders to continue their faith in the Government's methods.

He said the bank note circulation at the end of December was 15,457,000,000 lire, and that it had dropped by March 20 to 14,419,000,000 lire without "damaging pressure."

Declaring that gold standard countries had, during the last year, reconfirmed their fidelity to the gold base, the governor said: "We still find elements such as make us consider our principles more than well founded."

The bank declared a dividend of 60 lire (about $4.75).

TAX Evasion CHARGES ADDED IN RITTER IMPEACHMENT CASE

Two of Three New Articles Against Judge Alleged Failure to Pay on $17,300 in Income.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Three new articles of impeachment, two charging evasion of income taxes on 1929-30 income, have been voted by the House against Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of Florida.

The new articles increased the total to seven. The third additional count resulted from a division of the third original article into two articles, charging Ritter violated the judicial code by practicing law while a member of the bench. House prosecutors did not make public the amended articles yesterday when they were voted.

Yesterday's new turn in the case caused a postponement until today of the Senate appearance of Judge Ritter to make his reply to the charges.

The new fifth article approved by the House at the request of its prosecution managers charged Judge Ritter received $12,000 in 1929 above his salary as Judge, "yet paid no income tax thereon." The new sixth article charged the jurist also failed to report, or pay tax on $500, received above his salary in 1930.

MOVIE OPERATORS' UNION BILL OPPOSED

Business Firms, Church and Fraternal Groups Against Proposed Ordinance.

Considerable opposition has developed against a bill sponsored by the Motion Picture Operators' Union to require an "experienced" operator for every projecting machine used in any public or private place to which the public may be admitted or invited, even if there should be no admission charge.

The bill, introduced in the Board of Aldermen several months ago by Alderman Gregory V. Murray at the request of the union, has been reported favorably by the Public Safety Committee and will be up for passage Friday.

Principal objections to the measure have come from various manufacturing and retail establishments using movie projectors to show their products to use, persons interested in conventions where movies were used to augment lectures and representatives of fraternal and religious groups occasionally showing films.

As introduced originally, the bill would have required operators licensed by city examining board, but because of objections to this at the first public hearing, the union brought in a substitute bill at the second and final hearing, calling only for "experienced" operators at least 21 years old. The measure did not define experience, so that it might be possible for nonprofessional operators at private or semi-private establishments to claim they were qualified under its terms. Theaters, halls, churches and schools were mentioned specifically as among the places affected.

At the hearings, Thomas H. Rogers, director of the Chamber of Commerce legislative bureau, and Joseph A. Schlecht, secretary-manager of the Greater St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, led in stating objections of lay interests to the bill. Rogers asserted it would be necessary for a church or fraternal group to employ operators. Union operators are paid $90 a week. Schlecht pointed out that non-inflammable films were used at commercial showings.

Theater owners, opposing the bill, declared it was unnecessary and an attempt to write into the law a union rule already in effect in the theaters, which employed one operator for each projector. Robert Tomson, business agent of the union, and John P. Nick, international vice-president of the Stage Hands' Union, argued for the proposal in the interest of safety.

Statement by Nick.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter today Nick asserted the unions had not intended the bill to apply to exhibitions at which admission was not charged and conceded that perhaps the terms were too broad.

However, he expressed belief that a church or school showing a movie for an admission price should be placed under the rule. He denied the object was to put the union rule into the law or to increase employment for union operators.

Chairman Hubert A. Hoefflinger of the Aldermanic Public Safety Committee told the reporter he would consult with colleagues before the board meeting Friday concerning the possibility of amending or recommitting the bill. Violation of the bill would be subject to a fine of $25 to $500 for each day's offense.

MRS. CATHERINE F. SCHWAB, MOTHER OF STEEL MAN, DIES

Widow of Banker Succumbs to Pneumonia in Loretta (Pa.) Home at Age of 93.

LORETTA, Pa., March 31.—Mrs. Catherine Farabaugh Schwab, mother of Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate, died here yesterday of pneumonia. She was 93 years old.

Mrs. Schwab was born here, where the inhabitants knew her as "the grand old lady." She spent most of her life here, active until illness forced her to bed.

Mrs. Schwab was the widow of John A. Schwab, a banker. He died May 5, 1924, after they had been married nearly 63 years.

At her bedside were two of her children, Edward Schwab of New York and Mrs. David Barry of Johnstown. Another daughter is a nun in the Order of St. Theresa of Lisieux.

The steel man also built St. Michael's Catholic Church here, where Mrs. Schwab was a life member. She will be buried in the Schwab mausoleum here.

MARCH ABOVE NORMAL, AVERAGE 49 DEGREES

Month Not So Variable as in Other Years; Planting Conditions Good.

March, according to tradition, brings rapid drops in temperature, great gusts of wind which send hats bouncing down dusty streets, and sunshiny days suddenly followed by chill, snowy weather. This year, however, March was not so fickle. There were sudden drops in temperature, great gusts of wind but little snowy weather—in fact, almost no snow at all.

The month was in the main mild.

So mild in fact that the average temperature was 49 degrees, five above normal.

During the three preceding months, however, temperatures were below normal. The mild weather this month permitted the solidly frozen earth to thaw, making it suitable for spring ploughing and planting of gardens. Several successive warm days will bring out leaves and early flowers, Nunn said.

There were only 10 days during the month when temperatures dropped below normal, but the coldest was only 24 degrees, on the 6th. March days have been much colder in the past, the lowest ever recorded being 3 above zero on March 7, 1899. The highest temperature of the month was 74, far from the record extreme of 92 degrees on March 24, 1929.

High winds were recorded on nine days, a rather small number for March. The strongest wind was 47 miles an hour on the 22nd, but the record wind velocity is 57 miles an hour, recorded in March, 1873. There were three thunderstorms during the month, none of great consequence.

Total precipitation amounted to 1.66 inches, as compared with a normal of 3.38 inches. January and February had less than the normal amount of precipitation, also. Ordinarily, precipitation totals about 8.35 inches during the first three months, but this year it has totaled only 4.95 inches.

There was a trace of snow on the 19th and 20th, but last year there was none at all. Normally during March there is 3.8 inches of snow. The river has been above normal all through the month, but has been far below flood stage.

The small amount of rainfall during the month has favored outdoor work, in contrast to last March when little outdoor activity was possible. At that time rainfall totaled 6.43 inches.

The almost continuous mild weather has continued now for about five weeks, starting the last week in February. It followed a four-week period which set a record for continuous cold.

NEW CLOSING SCHEDULE FOR AIR MAIL ANNOUNCED

Changes in Hours of Departure for New York, Los Angeles and the South.

Changes in the closing time at the main Post Office for air mail for the West, South and East, effective tomorrow, have been announced by Postmaster Jackson.

Air mail for Los Angeles, which formerly closed at 12:49 p. m., will now close at 1:08 p. m. and will arrive at Los Angeles at 11:45 p. m. the same day. Air mail for Southwest Texas points will also close at 1:08 p. m. instead of 12:40 p. m., arriving at Dallas at 7:13 p. m. the same day and at Fort Worth at 7:30 p. m. the same day. Both of these mails will close at the Central Station, Eighth and Olive streets, at 12:35 p. m.

A new schedule for air mail for New York, routed via Chicago, will also go into effect tomorrow. The mail will close at the main Post Office at 5:10 p. m. and arrive at Newark airport at 2:40 a. m. the following day for distribution that morning in New York.

HEARING IN MO-PAC

$3,200,000 SUIT

Judge Asks for Briefs on Jurisdiction in Action Against Van Sweringen Firm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, March 31.—Briefs on the question of jurisdiction were requested by Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves yesterday at the conclusion of a hearing in the proceeding in which Guy A. Thompson of St. Louis, co-trustee in bankruptcy of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, is seeking to recover $3,200,000 paid by the railroad under $20,000,000 contracts to purchase terminal properties in North Kansas City and St. Joseph from the Van Sweringen interests which controlled it.

Thompson filed suit in Federal Court here last December to set aside the deal and recover the $3,200,000 payments with interest, charging the Van Sweringen interests sought to make a secret profit of $4,100,000 in the transaction.

At the hearings before Early the RFC contended that Terminal Shares, Inc. (Van Sweringen holding company) in selling the North Kansas City properties to Missouri Pacific withheld information that an obligation of $4,100,000 in interest accounts remained outstanding.

as unfair to the Missouri Pacific in hearings held at St. Louis in 1934 before Special Federal Court Master Marion C. Early. Early recommended a reduction of $6,000,000 in the purchase price, holding the contracts were executed in good faith without profit to the Van Sweringen interests, but, Federal Judge Faris of St. Louis held the contracts should be disaffirmed entirely by the trustees.

LAW TO BAR SHIPPING
'HOT' OIL HELD VALID

U. S. Appellate Court in Louisiana Upholds Injunction Against Producer.

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, March 31.—The validity of the Connally Act, prohibiting interstate transportation of contraband or "hot" oil, was upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today.

The constitutionality of the act was sustained in a decision affirming the action of the District Court for the Western District of Louisiana in issuing an interlocutory injunction restraining E. F. Griswold, the Griswold Refining Co. and others from dealing in interstate commerce in products made contraband by the laws of Texas.

In seeking dissolution of the injunction the Griswold company and its associates made a clear-cut issue of the validity of the Connally Act and the regulations issued under its authority.

The Griswold company's attack on the Connally Act was based primarily on the contentions that it was an invasion of State powers, that it was not a true regulation of interstate commerce, but an attempt by indirection to control the production and marketing of a natural product of a state.

Robert McClintock, 31, Addressed a Note to Sisters Saying His Wife Was Not to Blame.

Robert McClintock, 31 years old, a waiter, ended his life last night by drinking poison in a tavern at 3012 South Grand boulevard. In his clothing was a note addressed "To My Sisters," in which he asked that his body be given to a medical clinic and said, "Don't blame Ethel, blame whisky."

His father, William L. McClintock, 4217 Grace avenue, said Ethel was the son's estranged wife. The wife, who resides at 4304 McPherson avenue, said she separated.

AFTER 7 TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

John Austin Barred from Using Car for Year; Also Is Fined $91.

John Austin, a laborer, 1421A Cleary avenue, was fined $91 and his driver's license was suspended for a year by Police Judge George G. West today on seven charges of violating traffic ordinances, including careless driving, leaving the scene of an accident, rounding a corner without reducing speed, failure to observe a major stop sign, driving without lights, and failure to have a city license.

Police testified that after seeing Austin drive past the intersection of Elliot and Cass avenues early last Sunday morning without lights, they pursued him in another car, finally arresting him after his car collided with another machine at Dickson street and Leffingwell avenue. Austin did not testify.

LOW BID SUBMITTED FOR SUBWAY IN E. ST. LOUIS

Wooden Piers Under Illinois Central Tracks to Be Eliminated as Traffic Hazard.

Low bid for rebuilding the subway under the Illinois Central tracks on State Route 3, near Eighth street and Valentine avenue, East St. Louis, was submitted yesterday to the Keeley Brothers Contracting Co. of East St. Louis. The amount of the bid was $29,603.

Under the contract the wooden piers rising from the center of the highway to support the railroad trestle, constituting a traffic hazard, will be eliminated. Work will also include re-paving and regrading of the approach.

Other bidders were the H. R. Hall Construction Co. of East St. Louis, $31,589; and the Blackwell Corporation of East St. Louis, $326. The bids will be sent to the Illinois State Highway Department headquarters at Springfield for formal award of contracts.

HOUSING BILL SENT TO WHITE HOUSE

Extends Authority of FHA to Insure Modernization Loans Until April 1, 1937.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 31.— Congressional action was completed today on legislation extending for one year from April 1 the Federal Housing Administration's authority to insure modernization loans.

The measure was sent to the White House after a bloc of Representatives from flood-damaged states had failed in an effort to insert authorization for insurance of loans of up to $2000 each for replacing homes recently swept away.

The provision was included in the bill as it originally passed the House, but was not incorporated in the Senate's bill. It was eliminated by the Conference Committee, the report of which, adjusting differences between the two branches, was approved in a standing vote by the House today, 112 to 50.

Whether an effort will be made to send the bill by airplane to President Roosevelt, now fishing off the Florida coast, was not determined immediately. Officials said, however, a few days' suspension of modernization insurance would not work a great hardship.

The measure extends Title 1 of the Housing Act for one year, eliminates insurance on loans for electrical equipment, permits renters with leases running six months beyond the term of the loan to borrow, limits to 10 per cent the Government's liability in underwriting a loan and its total cost to $100,000,000; puts a $2000 limit on small home modernization loans, but allows up to $50,000 loan insurance for remodeling such places as apartment houses, small industrial plants, schools, churches and her mother.

President of High School Seniors at Onawa, Ia., Takes Poison.

ONAWA, Ia., March 31.—Ruth Hathaway, 18 years old, Onawa high school senior class president, drank a glass of poison in the high school locker room yesterday afternoon after telling several classmates "Watch me commit suicide."

She died within a few minutes. Reva Terry, Rosina Jungler, and Phyllis Smith, who were in the locker room at the time, said they first thought the girl was joking.

One held the glass containing the poison in one hand and several letters in the other. They were addressed to the senior class, the faculty, her dramatics teacher, and her mother.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DIRECTOR MEYERS ADVISES BUDGET OF $19,565,000

Recommendation to Board of Estimate for City's Next Fiscal Year Which Begins April 14.

A city budget appropriating $19,565,117 for the fiscal year starting April 14 was recommended to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment today by Budget Director Arthur C. Meyers. He declared anticipated revenue for the year could not be estimated accurately for a short time.

Although Meyers recently expressed fear that the current fiscal year might be ended with a deficit of about $700,000, Mayor Dickmann and other officials have been hopeful that various increases of revenue would enable the city to close the year with its books balanced. The deficit at the start of this year was $884,323.

The new budget, as proposed by the director, would provide $2,974,435 less than was requested by department heads, but in addition Meyers suggested that the Board of Estimate request the Police and Election Boards to reduce their requisition for funds for the coming year by at least $200,000. The city must appropriate whatever the State-controlled Police and Election Boards demand.

A call by the Election Board for $637,000 for the year seemed excessive in spite of the fact that there would be a State primary, national election, city elections and complete registration of voters, Meyers asserted. In the last four comparable years, he related, the Election Board, whose personnel is changed each four years, spent the following sums: 1932-33, $487,787; 1928-29, $60,943; 1924-25, $456,333; 1920-21, $489,823.

"It would seem reasonable," Meyers continued, "that the conditions of 1932-33 would very closely approximate the conditions of 1936-37, as the Election Board had the facilities of its new building for the first time in 1932-33, permitting better operation and administration than when the location was in City Hall. In view of the above, a reduction of $100,000 to $150,000 in the request of the Election Board does not seem out of line."

The Police Board asked for $74,360 more in the new year than was appropriated for it in the current year, Meyers related, saying that a reduction of $200,000 by these two boards would bring the budget to about $43,000 below all appropriations for the current year.

Meyers has pointed out that a reduction of about $21,000,000 in the real estate assessments for this year's taxes by the Assessor would cost the city more than $280,000 in revenue, but that this was expected to be made up by increased revenue from liquor and gasoline taxes.

Mayor Dickmann's Doubt.
Mayor Dickmann told reporters yesterday that he doubted expenditures in the coming year could be kept within the volume for the year now ending, because of the request of the Director of Streets and Sewers for funds for traffic signals and control facilities, which the Mayor and Director thought were necessary in the street safety campaign. For this work the department requested $214,690, but Meyers recommended $76,130. The department had proposed, among other things, to employ 16 traffic inspectors, instead of four, and to give them patrol automobiles.

The recommended budget would reduce Water Division expenditures, which are wholly out of water revenue, by $125,818 from the amount sought, but would leave this appropriation $9352 higher than last year, providing $2,290,044 this time. This allowance was in addition to the general budget, covering expenditures under municipal revenue.

Meyers did not count on the possible additional expenditure of $53,000 for medical inspection of parochial school children, as contemplated in a pending bill.

Principal Reductions.
Many reductions from amounts requested, as proposed by Meyers, were comparatively small. The largest cuts included were: Fire Department, $2,629,901 to $2,225,585; Circuit Court, $261,500 to $228,500; Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, $179,050 to $161,750; president's department, Board of Public Service, $281,126 to $218,440; Director of Public Utilities, $173,750 to $165,350; lighting public buildings, $265,948 to $201,180; lighting streets, boulevards and parks, $223,352 to $126,000; power plants, $523,504 to $374,704; bridge maintenance, $158,905 to $90,750; bituminous pavement, $303,900 to $194,056; block pavement, $241,428 to $159,521; telford macadam pavement, $253,000 to $144,610; street cleaning, $373,393 to $275,660; harbor and wharf section, $114,858 to $15,340; sewer maintenance, cleaning and permit section, $372,706 to $239,626; garbage and refuse collection and disposal and stable section, $300,855 to $251,990; shop maintenance, $86,036 to $63,276; fire and police telegraph, $111,132 to $49,415; Building Commissioner, $154,682 to $127,420; City Hospital, $112,273 to $731,094; City Infirmary, $152,331 to $121,560; Koch Hospital, $460,978 to $318,379; City Sanitarium, $865,268 to $670,477; St. Louis Training School for the Feeble-minded, $241,794 to $148,288; main-taining parks and grounds, $1,102,200 to $864,935; Bellefontaine Farms, $116,426 to $85,626; Board of Children's Guardians, $436,421 to $369,

POSTAL DEPARTMENT HEARING HELD ON GAMES OF CHANCE

Spokesmen of Groups Argue They Deal in Games of Skill and Do Not Violate Postal Laws.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The Grand National Treasure Hunt and the Association for Legalizing American Lotteries, both of New York, began a fight for legal recognition today at a Post Office Department hearing to determine whether they should be barred from the mails.

Postoffice inspectors and department lawyers, contending the schemes sponsored by the organizations are games of chance, planned to ask that a fraud order be issued to close the mails to them.

Representatives of the organizations, however, argue they deal in "games of skill" and do not violate the postal laws.

Names also as co-defendants are: George E. Fraser, distributor; Ward & Belford, Morse Gordon & Steinberg & Weinberg, all of New York.

Purchasers are not given a chance to participate in a prize drawing, the charge added, but the sellers "merely afford purchasers an opportunity to submit guesses as to which of 30 so-called 'titles' for each of the eight so-called 'cartoons' is to be selected by the so-called 'judges' of the so-called 'contest' as the best, second, best, etc."

Karl A. Crowley, solicitor of the department, announced a hearing would be held tomorrow on the Golden Status, with which Alfred Smith Jr., son of the former New York Governor, is associated, and on the National Conference on Legalizing Lotteries, headed by Mrs. Oliver Harriman, New York, on April 2.

ROOSEVELT CONTINUES INDUSTRIAL COMMITTEE

Sets Aside $100,000 From Work Relief Funds for Assembling Data.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., March 31.—Continuation of the Committee for Industrial Co-operation with its assignment of improving private employment and labor standards was ordered last night by President Roosevelt as he cruised toward Nassau, the capital of the Bahamas Islands, for a visit tomorrow.

In an executive order, signed aboard the U. S. S. Potomac, Mr. Roosevelt directed George L. Berry, the present co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, to carry on under his existing arrangement of serving without salary.

He set aside $100,000 from the work relief funds for the committee to continue its assembling of data on operation of industries formerly under NRA codes. The order is effective April 1 when the present life of the committee expires. The character of the work of those to be paid under the $100,000 funds was set forth as follows:

"Assembling, analyzing and reporting upon the statistical information and governmental records of experience of the operations of the various trades and industries hereafter subject to codes of fair competition formulated under the authority of Title I of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

"Studying the effect of such codes upon trade, industrial and labor conditions in general;

"Making general available information with respect to industry."

NEW MEXICO TEACHER'S DEATH NOW LAID TO BULLET WOUND

John Bodo First Thought to Have Died in Sandia Mountains of Exposure

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 31—District Attorney Thomas J. Mabry said last night a bullet hole had been found in the head of John Bodo, University of New Mexico instructor, whose body was discovered in the Sandia Mountains yesterday.

Death at first was ascribed to exposure. A small caliber rifle was near the body. One cartridge had been fired.

Herbert Brayer and J. F. Jones, also instructors at the university, told officers Bodo separated from them while they were hiking Sunday.

Bodo formerly lived in Lorain, O.

TWO MILWAUKEE TEACHERS REFUSED LEAVE FOR OLYMPICS

School Board Tells Them They Can Go in Summer at Own Expense.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 31.—The school board refused today to allow two recreation directors to have leaves with pay for attendance at the Olympic Games.

Mrs. Meta Berger, widow of Victor L. Berger, former Socialist Congressman, went home by plane from New York last night to oppose the requests of Harold Morgan, athletic director, and Will Kiel, head of the Siebert Social Center.

Mrs. Berger suggested that the men "can absorb some commendable ideas" by touring Russia and proposed that the leaves be granted with the stipulation they avoid Germany. Harry V. Meissner, board president, put the question to a vote. The leaves were denied, but the men were told there would be no objection to their trip if made during the summer vacation and at their own expense.

UNION AGENTS REJECT PLAN TO END PWA STRIKE

Committee Ordered to Negotiate Further With Federal and City Officials in Hope of Greater Concessions.

The recommendation by a Strike Committee of the Building Trades Council that the 2000 union building mechanics now on strike return to work immediately on 22 PWA jobs and the new postoffice was rejected at a meeting of union business agents this morning at Unity Hall, Grand and Page boulevards.

It was decided to negotiate further with Federal Government and city officials in the hope of obtaining more definite concessions to the union demands before terminating the strike. One point to be taken up is a request that the city refuse to sponsor future Federally-financed jobs, which encroach on the regular work of the skilled building crafts. The strike committee was directed to carry this request to Mayor Dickmann, and to report results.

The strike was called March 16 on the PWA jobs, including schools, hospitals and other public improvements, in protest against the wage scale paid by the WPA. The Building Trades Council had made repeated demands for exemptions from the "security wage" rule of the Works Progress Administration, to permit the hiring of union men at prevailing union wages. State WPA Administrator Matthew Murray was charged with being antagonistic to organized labor by union leaders, who contended that the "security wage" of $55 to $95 a month tended to weaken the union wage structure generally.

The union committee met yesterday with Howard Drew and Thornton Wilcox, who were sent here from the regional WPA office at Chicago to discuss the situation. Previously Thomas F. Quinn and John J. Church, officers of the Building Trades Council, took the complaint to United States Senators Truman and Clark and WPA officials at Washington.

Lawrence Rafferty, painter's representative, told the Post-Dispatch that the committee had established that exemptions were made on WPA work in other states, to permit the employment of union labor at union wages, and that Murray could make a 10 per cent exemption in Missouri. The plan suggested by the committee was that union labor be segregated on each job and that hours be reduced to keep pay checks within the $95 monthly maximum. It was charged that "security wage" workers, taken from relief rolls, were encroaching on work which rightfully belonged to skilled union men, and that the unions were being penalized for keeping their members off relief.

The strike lost some effectiveness, the strike committee agreed, due to the fact that the WPA personnel will be greatly reduced during the summer.

ONE KILLED, FOUR WOUNDED IN CLASH AT NEUVO LAREDO

Attempt Made to Seize Government of Mexican Border City.

By the Associated Press.

LAREDO, Tex., March 31.—An attempt to seize control of the Nuevo Laredo city government caused a fight today in which one man was killed and four were badly wounded.

The outbreak was attributed to a political feud between two rival factions.

A group of men gathered during the night in the vicinity of Hidalgo Plaza in the Mexican city and stayed there until just before dawn, when they advanced on the City Hall. Policemen in the building were unaware of what was going on until they were ordered by the invaders to evacuate. The shooting resulted.

Policeman Leopoldo Esquivel was killed instantly. Sgt. Luis R. Mendez, Policeman Salome Garcia and State Policeman I. Mata and Alfonso Morene were wounded.

Mayor Martin Herrera called for military protection of the City Hall and put Nuevo Laredo, which is just across the Rio Grande from Laredo, Tex., under military rule.

Gov. Enrique Canseco of the State of Tamaulipas named Candelario Guajardo, Nuevo Laredo banker, to head a civil committee to handle the affairs of the Mexican city until a municipal election can be held.

MARILYN MILLER GRAVELY ILL

Actress Suffering From "Very Serious Toxic Condition."

By the Associated Press.

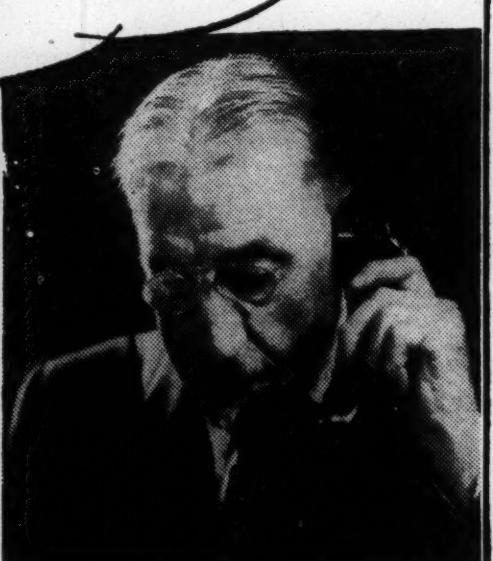

NEW YORK, March 31.—Slight improvement in the condition of Marilyn Miller, stage and screen actress, was reported today by her physician, Dr. W. L. Whittemore, after it was feared she might not live through the day. "Miss Miller is a little better now," he said, "and we are more hopeful. But she is very seriously ill."

Her temperature, he added, had dropped from a high of 106 to 104%. She remained semi-conscious, suffering from a "very serious toxic condition," Dr. Whittemore said. She entered the hospital two weeks ago for a rest.

FLOOD RELIEF GIFTS IN CITY TOTAL $48,134

Only $10,000 Short of Goal
But More Funds Needed to Meet Conditions.

Contributions reached $48,134 this morning in the campaign of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross for $55,000 to aid flood victims in the East and Middle West.

Although the St. Louis chapter is only $10,000 short of its goal, J. Lomberger Davis, chairman of the chapter, expressed hope the money raised here will exceed the quota, pointing out the original fund of $3,000,000 sought by the American Red Cross will be inadequate because of continued floods.

Flood conditions in Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois have made necessary the aid of the Red Cross, bringing the number of states in which emergency relief work is in progress to 16.

Among the largest subscriptions received yesterday and today were: Shell Petroleum Corporation, Union Electric Light & Power Co., Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. (which contributed $10,000 at its home office in New York), $900 each; St. Louis Mutual Life Insurance Co., Missouri Athletic Association, Mrs. August A. Busch, J. English O'Connor, Mrs. George P. Power, William R. Werner & Co., Wagner Electric Corporation, Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones, A. C. Carpenter, $100 each. Anonymous contributions of $500 and $200 were received.

ROBBERS GET $16,000 PAYROLL

City Treasurer's Funds Stolen at Chelsea, Mass.

By the Associated Press.

CHELSEA, Mass., March 31.—Three robbers took $16,000 in cash from the Chelsea City Treasurer's office today and fled after beating a police guard with a pistol.

The three attacked Patrolman John C. Martin and Norman Hawley, a bank messenger, as they stepped into the Treasurer's office with the money they had carried from the Broadway National Bank.

One of the robbers struck Martin with a pistol, a second man jumped on Hawley while the third took the money bag from the messenger's hand. The money was the city employees' payroll.

SHIP PASSENGERS TELL HOW HIPPO KILLED PYGMY ELEPHANT

Awakened by Roars of Animals in Hold as Vessel Passed Through Storm.

BOSTON, March 31.—Passengers leaving the liner Excalibur told today of a fight on the ship between a 400-pound hippopotamus and a pygmy elephant from the Belgian Congo that ended in the death of the elephant. The hippopotamus was recaptured.

Roars of the hippopotamus and trumpeting of the elephant awakened the passengers one morning as the ship passed through a storm. Eight boys from the Congo, hired by a representative of a circus to convey the animals to the United States, finally trapped the hippopotamus after four hours.

BOY GETS 20 MONTHS FOR KILLING STEPMOTHER

Family Testifies His Nerves Went to Pieces Under Her Displays of Temper.

By the Associated Press

MONTREAL, March 31.—Louis Bibenga, 15-year-old High School student, was sentenced yesterday to 20 months' imprisonment for killing his stepmother last October. The youth's sentence was dated back to Oct. 11 when he was arrested. The stepmother was found shot to death in her bed room.

Bibenga did not deny the charge. He and members of his family testified his nerves had "gone to pieces" under the displays of ill-temper by the stepmother. The jury returned a verdict of manslaughter.

IOWA STATE AGENT TESTIFIES IN MURDER TRIAL OF FARMER

Says Prosecutor Told Him Defendant Cried Capsule in Wife's Purse Was "Planted."

By the Associated Press

BEDFORD, Ia., March 31.—Floyd Horton, farmer on trial for the murder by poison of his wife, was represented by Con Ryan, a State agent, yesterday, as saying "an empty capsule found in his wife's purse after her death last month was a plant."

Ryan, who went to the Horton farm with County Attorney Roger Warin after the finding of poison in Mrs. Horton's body, said Warin told him Horton made the assertion while he, Ryan, was not in the house.

Horton, Ryan said Warin told him, cried "it's a plant," when the empty capsule was found in Mrs. Horton's purse.

Horton's story of his "surprise" at finding the empty capsule in his wife's purse was placed before the jury when District Judge Homer A. Fuller admitted a transcript of Horton's testimony before a Coroner's jury which investigated Mrs. Horton's death.

SECOND VICTIM OF AUTO CRASH IN COUNTY DIES

Grant Williams, 72 Years Old, Succumbs to Pneumonia After Being Injured Last Saturday.

COMPANION WAS KILLED; 7 HURT

Woman Who Was Hurt When Crossing Street March 9 Also Dies at Hospital.

Grant Williams, 72 years old, 1422A Hodiamont avenue, died last night at Central Hospital of pneumonia resulting from injuries suffered early last Saturday in an automobile collision at Page avenue and Hanley road, St. Louis County.

Elmer F. Busk, 54 years old, a photoengraver, 5942 Hamilton terrace, was killed in the crash, in which Williams and seven other persons were hurt.

Williams and Busk was passengers in the automobile of Dewey McGee, a pipefitter, 5991 Ridge avenue, which collided head-on with another machine driven by Edward Herzing, a mechanic, 3767 Penrose street. Williams suffered fractured ribs, which punctured his lung, and a fractured ankle.

Woman Injured by Auto March 9 Dies at Hospital.

Mrs. Nicolas Bader, 69 years old, 2416 (rear) Lemp avenue, died last night at City Hospital of complications resulting from injuries suffered when struck by an automobile on March 9.

Charles G. Norman, a shoe worker, 4623 Cecil place, told police that Mrs. Bader stepped into the path of his automobile at Gravois avenue and Meramec street. She suffered fractures of the hip and knee. Arrested as Fugitive Driver Whose Car Struck Newsboy.

El Griffin, an unemployed clerk, was arrested today as the driver, who left the scene after his automobile struck and injured Peter Karras, 13, a newsboy, in the 4300 block of Delmar boulevard last night.

Karras, residing at 737 Bayard avenue, is in St. John's Hospital with fractures of the skull and neck.

After the boy was found unconscious in front of 4348 Delmar by persons who heard the crash, police recovered an automobile, which had been abandoned, with headlight and fender damaged, at Walton avenue and Delmar boulevard. Investigation developed that the machine had been rented from an agency at 3630 Olive street by Griffin, a former employee of the firm.

Griffin was arrested on the street at Broadway and Washington avenue this afternoon by Detective James Shelton, who knows him. He told Shelton, the latter reported, that he felt a jar while driving west in Delmar last night, but did not realize that he had struck the boy. He left the machine at Walton avenue after becoming ill, he asserted.

James Bullock Jr., 4 years old, 1418A South Broadway, suffered a fractured shoulder and a skull injury when struck by an automobile at Seventh boulevard and Rutger street at 6:30 p. m., yesterday. He is in City Hospital. The boy's brother, Albert, 15, told police that James jerked away from him and ran against the side of the automobile. Albert said the driver stopped, but later drove on. He obtained the license number, which was traced to Francis Lucas, a salesman, 3323 McKean avenue. Lucas, who was placed under bond, told police, they reported, that he waited at the scene for a policeman, and, when none appeared, he went home.

A truck-trailer loaded with gasoline, and a passenger automobile collided head-on at 10800 Riverview drive last night and both machines overturned. Fred Neustadt, a farmer, of Baden, driver of the passenger car, suffered cuts of the face. Gasoline from the trailer flowed over the highway, causing police to divert traffic for a time as a safety measure.

CHINESE VESSEL SINKING

Sends Radio Message for Help; Nearest Ship 400 Miles Away.

HONGKONG, March 31.—The steamship Pei An sent a radio message today that it was sinking near Eaklong Island in the Gulf of Tongking off the French Indo-China coast.

The nearest vessel was a British warship at Hongkong, 400 miles away, which would be unable to reach the Pei An before tomorrow morning, reports here indicated. The Pei An, a Chinese vessel, was on the way from Hongkong to Port Redon.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 31.—Coach Alex McPherson ordered his Flyers to report at the St. Paul Auditorium today for a practice session. Those who saw the St. Louis club lose to St. Paul, 2 to 1, last night in the first of a five-game playoff series for the American Hockey Association championship, agreed that they needed the work.

The two teams are to meet in the second contest tomorrow night, then go to St. Louis for games Friday and Sunday and, if necessary, next Tuesday.

But the Flyers are not very confident of gaining an even break here even with additional practice, for on this very huge ice surface the St. Paul club appears to be just too speedy for the slower moving St. Louis players.

The rink here is 220 feet long and 97 1/2 feet wide, longer and considerably wider than the ice at the Arena. Thus the speedy Saints, the Hansen boys, Johnny Flood and Hodge Johnson, just fly around the Flyers.

Palangio, Purpur, Breckheimer and Burkholder seemed to match the Saints stride for stride, but the rest of the Flyers were easily outskated and that was the factor which determined the battle. That is, the Saints' speed and two goals in 10 minutes scored by the league's leading scorer, Oscar Hansen.

Careless Play Is Costly.

Both of Oscar Hansen's goals were the result of careless play around the St. Louis net. On each of them the Flyers had an opportunity to get the puck out of danger, but in each instance over-skated or tried to dribble. Both times Oscar was in like a flash to whop shots at Goaltender Hub Nelson, and Outfielder Ethan Allen.

Grimm was expected to talk to Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Flats at Winter Haven, Fla., where the National League teams meet in an exhibition tussle tomorrow.

COMMUNITY CENTERS BASKETBALL TOURNEY WILL START TOMORROW

The annual City Community Center basketball tournament will open at Cherokee Community Center, Thirteenth and Lemp streets, tomorrow, Frank D. Sullivan, Superintendent of Recreation, announced yesterday.

Once the Saints were safely out in front they took every opportunity to play safe and it was not until the last five seconds of play that the St. Louis team got its one-useless marker. That was counted by Purpur on a pass from Palangio when there were four Flyers and Nelson on the ice while St. Paul had only three men in front of their goal keeper.

While there was plenty of hard checking in the game, it was generally a clean contest and not many penalties were called.

The schedule:

BURMAN-LEWIS FIGHT MAY BE POSTPONED WEEK

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, March 31.—Clarence (Red) Burman, light-heavyweight on Jack Dempsey's string, was unable to meet John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion, in Chicago, April 8.

It was disclosed here last night,

Burman hurt his hand in stopping

Buddy Knox in five rounds at Chi-ago Friday. X-ray pictures will be taken today, and, if the injury is serious, the Lewis bout probably will be postponed a week.

Penalties against Matte and Swenson in the second period put the Flyers in the hole, but McPherson sent out Breckheimer, Walker, McKinnon and Swenson each time, and they managed to stave off the Saints' rushes.

A penalty against Flood gave the Flyers a chance, too, and McPherson put out his four fastest forwards in an attempt to score. Pur-pador, Palangio and Bur-mister stormed the St. Paul net, but Flood gave a great exhibition of stick handling to waste time and the St. Louisans' efforts were wasted.

Toward the close of the session,

McGloone was penalized and he was still in the box for a short time at the start of the final period, but again the Flyers were unable to do anything in the way of scoring.

Palangio Scores for Flyers.

With about half the period left to play, the Saints fell back on dethe stars, Kalle Schreider, to the defending champion.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

EXPRESS HIGHWAY EXTENSION
LIKELY TO PASS FRIDAY

Withdrawal of Objections By Alderman Hoeflinger Apparently Clears Way for Bill.

With the announcement by Alderman Hubert A. Hoeflinger of the Seventeenth Ward yesterday that he was withdrawing his objections to a bill for extending the new express highway eastward, it appeared likely that the measure would be passed by the Board of Aldermen Friday. Probably it will be approved Thursday by the Streets Committee, which had indicated its approval, subject to Hoeflinger's consent.

Hoeflinger told reporters he had induced merchants and other residents of his ward, in which the improvement would be made, to drop their objections to it. The merchants had feared the extension might divert business from them. The bill would appropriate $45,000 for right-of-way for about two blocks. The extension would cross Vandeventer avenue on a bridge and connect with the Chouteau avenue viaduct. The State has proposed to build it with $300,000 of Federal funds.

An effort also will be made this week to obtain favorable action by the Streets Committee and the board on bills for viaducts to carry Kingshighway and Chippewa street over the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks. It was thought at City Hall that the Kingshighway proposal had the better chance, there being considerable neighborhood opposition to the Chippewa street plans.

E. O. McCormack, Salesman, Dies.
Elmer O. McCormack, furniture salesman for Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Co., died today at City Hospital of a gall-bladder ailment. He was 38 years old and resided at 946 Hamilton avenue with his wife, Mrs. La Verne McCormack, and a son, William. Funeral services will be held Thursday at Newton Ill., where he lived until he came to St. Louis 20 years ago.

PUERTO RICAN PLOT INQUIRY BEGUN BY U. S. GRAND JURY

Nationalist Leader, Six Others Accused of Conspiring to Overthrow Government by Force.

PARTY BEHIND FIGHT FOR INDEPENDENCE

Arrests Followed Assassination of Col. E. Francis Riggs, Police Chief, by Two Youths.

By the Associated Press.
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, March 31.—A federal grand jury began its investigation today into the case of Pedro Albizu Campos and six other Nationalists charged with conspiring to overthrow the United States Government in Puerto Rico by force.

The District Attorney announced that he had decided on this procedure rather than await the preliminary hearing originally set for April 2 before the United States Commissioner after the seven Nationalist leaders were arrested early this month.

Albizu, Harvard graduate and president of the Nationalist party of Puerto Rico, which has been campaigning for independence from the United States, was directed to produce party documents for the grand jury inquiry. The editors of three newspapers were among the witnesses summoned.

Albizu Issues Statement.

In a statement, repeated by his persistent declarations that Puerto Rico, a former Spanish colony ceded to the United States in 1898, should be made an independent nation.

The United States military intervention of our country is simply the most brutal and abusive act of force perpetrated in contemporary history," his statement said.

"We demand the withdrawal of the armed forces of the United States from our soil as a natural and legitimate defense of the independence of Puerto Rico."

"When, on Sept. 23, 1868, our forefathers proclaimed our independence from Spain, they solemnly asserted that the revolution was not founded on any grievance against our mother country.

Says Spain Granted Autonomy.

The mother nation, Spain, the chivalrous founder of modern civilization, recognized the fundamental principles in international relations as expounded by our forefathers in 1868, and granted Puerto Rico the great charter of autonomy in virtue of which the relations between Spain and Puerto Rico were to be regulated by treaty, thus recognizing that our country is a sovereign, free and independent nation.

This recognition of our place in the family of free nations was irrevocable and obligatory on all Powers, and never could be at the mercy of the vicissitudes of the wars of the mother country, or of any war. The treaty of Paris imposed by force by the United States on Spain on April 11, 1898, is null and void, so far as Puerto Rico is concerned."

Albizu and his six Nationalist associates were arrested March 5, charged with inciting to insurrection and recruiting soldiers in a conspiracy to overthrow the Government. They were released under bonds to await hearings.

The arrests followed frequent incidents involving Nationalists and United States authorities. Col. E. Francis Riggs, chief of the insular police, was assassinated Feb. 23 by two youths, self-designated Nationalists, who were killed later by police.

COMMUNIST EDITOR ARRESTED

Accused of Publishing Falsehoods About French Army.

PARIS, March 31.—Emile Bonnat, managing editor of L'Humanité, the official newspaper of the French Communist party, was arrested today on the charge of "disseminating false information" concerning the treatment of French soldiers.

The newspaper published letters purporting to have been written by soldiers saying their food and medical treatment was bad.

AIR LINER FIRE IN CHINA

Passengers and Mail Saved by Expert Landing.

By the Associated Press.
NANKING, China, March 31.—Charles Sharp of Fort Worth, Tex., pilot of a Shanghai-Nanking air liner, saved his passengers and mail today with an expert landing.

He brought down his burning ship at the airport and removed his passengers and mail a few moments before the craft was destroyed by a gasoline tank explosion.

Hearst Denounced in Senate For Cutting Employees' Pay While Building a $15,000,000 Castle

Schwellenbach Charges Publisher Deliberately Stirred Up War Sentiment in 1917
"to Sell More Papers."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 31.—Senator Schwellenbach (Dem.), Washington, told the Senate today that William Randolph Hearst ordered wage cuts for his employees at the same time he was building at $15,- 000,000 Bavarian castle in Northern California "so he and Hollywood movie stars could enjoy themselves."

"No man in the country today is more despised by the men who work for him," said Schwellenbach, member of the Lobby Committee.

Getting the floor to attack the publisher who has asked the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to enjoin the committee from examining his telegrams, Schwellenbach said: "Mr. Hearst, who has been condemned and criticized by the newspaper fraternity since 1895, has now become the plumed knight leader of the newspaper fraternity."

He referred to Eliasha Hanson, counsel for the publisher as "a stooge for that portion of the newspaper fraternity which runs its business on the basis and theory of a sweatshop."

He read a magazine article purporting to outline the nature and extent of the Hearst holdings and said "I want to pay tribute" to the publisher's financial skill.

Then the Senator continued:
"While William Randolph Hearst was building his $15,000,000 castle, Winton, and drawing a $500,000 salary he ordered three separate reductions of 10 per cent each in the wages of his employees."

Refers to Shouse's Criticism.

Before attacking Hearst, Schwellenbach discussed briefly, criticism of the committee by Jouett Shouse, president of the American Liberty League.

Sarcastically, he said he wanted to thank Shouse for saying in his last attack that 22,000 telegrams had been inspected by the committee after having said previously that "all" wires passing in our out-of-washington during a part of last year had been examined—a number the committee estimated at 14,- 000,000.

Schwellenbach said Hearst dependent upon the inability of the public to remember.

"Who remembers?" he said. "The wicked and dastardly part played by Hearst in bringing on the war with Spain."

He said the publisher's policy was "as unstable as the wind," and that he "may blow hot in Chicago and cold in Atlanta."

Hearst's Activities in War.

He read at length from a critical statement by Oswald Garrison Villard in a book entitled "Some Newspapers and Newspaper Men," and went on from that to detail Hearst's activities during the World War.

The tactics of the publisher in operation of the International News Service, he said, caused that press service to be denied use of the wires in England, France and Canada.

MANCHOUKUO AGAIN SENDS PROTEST TO OUTER MONGOLIA

Charges That One Was Killed and Four Were Wounded in Air Bombing.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, March 31.—The Dome (Japanese) News Agency reports from Hsinking, Manchoukuo, that the Manchoukuo Government had telephoned a vigorous protest to Outer Mongolia, based on the allegation that two Mongolian planes attacked a Japanese patrol near Lake Bor March 29.

The Manchoukuo Government asserted one man was killed and four were wounded when the Mongolian planes dropped bombs and fired machine guns into the patrols.

It was the third Manchoukuo protest to Outer Mongolia in four days. The Japanese general headquarters at Hsinking joined in the complaint.

23 WOUNDED IN YUGOSLAVIA IN RIOT AGAINST SERB RULE

8 Policemen Among Injured; 500
Students Held in Zagreb University.

By the Associated Press.
ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, March 31.—
Twenty-three persons, including eight policemen, were wounded in riots last night as Croats demonstrated against Serb rule.

Sporadic shooting continued as officers attempted to suppress the disorders.

Five hundred students were held in the Zagreb University building surrounded by police. Authorities decided to keep the students inside. Citizens were allowed to toss packages of food inside.

Reports from Vienna said the demonstrations started at the funeral of Stephen Jawor, a student who died in prison after his commitment in 1929 for a political offense.

IRAN, OFFENDED BY U. S. COMMENT, RECALLS CONSULS

Shah Resents Articles in Press Following Speeding Arrest of Former Minister.

FORMAL APOLOGY MADE AT THE TIME

Officers Who Seized Diplomat Were Dismissed—He Reported He Was Handcuffed.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 31.—The Iranian (Persian) Government has ordered its legation in Washington and its consulates in the United States closed because of articles appearing in the American press which it considers a discourtesy to the Shah.

Presumably in connection with the arrest in Elkton, Md., last October of the former Iranian Minister to Washington, the monarchy ordered all its diplomatic and consular personnel in the United States to return to Iran immediately. This has resulted in the closing not only of the legation in Washington, but also of consulates in New York and Chicago.

It was stated authoritatively last night that the action was taken because of the "hurt" of the Persian Government concerning articles and references in the press of the United States which were considered unfriendly to the Shah and to Iran in general.

Present plans, it was disclosed,
call only for hearings, to be spread over a number of weeks, in the course of which financial sources and activities of a number of organizations—including the Liberty League, the Sentinels of the Republic and the Crusaders—will be put in Hearst's messages.

Minton contended that freedom of the press meant to Hearst "license to traduce and vilify public officers as swine and traitors to their country."

Ending of the field work of the committee, it was said, likewise meant an end to the much-criticized seizure of telegraphic correspondence, among it some of Hearst's.

Present plans, it was disclosed,
call only for hearings, to be spread over a number of weeks, in the course of which financial sources
and activities of a number of organizations—including the Liberty
League, the Sentinels of the Republic and the Crusaders—will be put in Hearst's messages.

Call for Indignities.

The Minister, Ghaffer Djalal, was arrested in Elkton, Md., last October on a charge of speeding while motoring from Washington to New York with his wife. He was handcuffed and subjected to what he said were other indignities in violation of his diplomatic immunity.

As a result of a formal protest to the State Department, apologies by the Governor of Maryland and by the Secretary of State were made and the diplomat's demand that the arresting officers be punished was followed by their dismissal from the service of the town of Elkton.

At the time, however, Secretary Hull issued a statement to the press asserting that while diplomatic representatives were entitled to immunity from arrest and prosecution, the American Government did not consider that this privilege allowed them to violate the laws of the land.

Djalal had contended he was unaware that his chauffeur was violating the Elkton speed limits at the time of his arrest, asserting that he was on the back seat conversing with Mrs. Djalal when the car was halted.

His Return Was Ordered.

After his arrest Djalal was ordered to return to Iran. He left Jan. 14, letting it be known to his colleagues here that the Iranian Government was displeased at the treatment he had received and that it did not intend to send another Minister to Washington to succeed him.

Ghods, who was first secretary of the legation, has remained here as Charge d'Affaires since with no other diplomatic assistants except one or two clerks.

Ghods and the consuls in New York and Chicago are reported to be packing their belongings preparatory for sailing for home at the earliest possible moment.

SPAIN TAKING SCHOOLS AWAY FROM CHURCH

Government Seeking Complete Secularization in Accordance With Constitution

By the Associated Press.
MADRID, March 31.—Complete secularization of Spain's schools in accordance with the constitution is the aim of the present government headed by Manuel Azana, in an effort to reduce Spain's illiteracy of 45 per cent.

The Government faces two difficulties, first a shortage of 12,000 schools needed to complete the 63,000 that the government thinks Spain should have, and second, a shortage in teachers competent to take over posts now held mostly by religious instructors.

Manuelino Domingo, Minister of Education, said the government would follow the constitution, which states that "instruction shall be laic," that is, belonging to the laity, not clerical.

Asked whether the law of June 2, 1933, also said specifically, "religious orders and congregations shall not devote themselves to the exercise of instruction."

However, he added, did not prevent the Roman Catholic Church from "teaching its doctrines in its own establishments," subject to inspection by the state.

The government does not want to cause any upset in the educational system because it does not possess adequate means to carry out the substitution," he said, "nor does it want any lessening in the efficiency of national education because it is not equipped to improve on the education given by the religious orders and congregations. The substitution will take place without delay, but with full consciousness of what it means and in a way that cannot give rise to any criticism from a pedagogical point of view."

Asked when he thought secularization of the schools would be completed, he replied:

"This depends on many circumstances, such as the preparation of teachers, the furnishing of buildings and the availability of funds. You can be sure that it is our hope to complete it as soon as possible. It should be completed in the secondary schools by next year."

COL. JAMES WALKER DIES; CANADIAN INDIAN FIGHTER

Led Famous Overland March of Royal Northwest Mounted Police Troop in 1874.

CALGARY, Alta., March 31.—Col. James Walker, 90 years old, who led the famous overland march of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police in 1874, died in a hospital today.

Walker's military services began in the second Fenian raid of 1870 and ended, at the age of 70 years, in the World War in France. In 1874 he was made superintendent and sub-inspector of the mounted and led a troop overland from St.
Paul to Fort Dufferin, now Emerson, Man. He concluded a treaty with the Cree Indians in 1876.

In 1878, with two men, he faced

FARM CREDIT BILL PASSED

Measure Would Increase Capitalization of Commodity Corporation.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The House today passed the Senate bill increasing the capitalization of the Commodity Credit Corporation from $3,000,000 to $100,000,000 and sent it to the White House. The capitalization would be increased through facilities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and involve no new outlay of Federal funds.

The object of the legislation, as explained by its proponents, is to enable the corporation, as a result of its larger capital, to borrow money privately at lower interest with the savings to be passed on to the farmers in financing of surplus cotton and corn holdings.

Asked when he thought secularization of the schools would be completed, he replied:

"This depends on many circumstances, such as the preparation of teachers, the furnishing of buildings and the availability of funds. You can be sure that it is our hope to complete it as soon as possible. It should be completed in the secondary schools by next year."

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Hitler's Germany.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In his speech at Karlsruhe, Hitler declared that one of the difficulties he faced as Reichsfuehrer was "to make clear to the rest of the world that this is a different Germany from that of former days."

I find myself in agreement with Der Fuehrer that this is a different Germany than was the Republic or the Empire. In Hitler's Reich, all civil liberties are dead; all labor unions are smashed and all religious faiths and political opinions not in keeping with Naziism are persecuted for the benefit of big business, the Junkers and the militarists; more than 80 of Germany's and the world's most eminent writers and poets have fled the country. "Germany has dropped out of it musically," according to Charles Wakefield Cadman, one of America's leading composers. Liberal scientists like Albert Einstein, threatened with assassination by Nazis, have fled the country of their birth.

Yes, how different a Germany this is! A Germany in which some 4500 liberty-loving citizens have been murdered in cold blood; a country to which 60 British members of Parliament have journeyed from London to demand from Der Fuehrer the freedom of a Thaelmann, an Ossietzky, world-famous pacifist, a Mierendorff, labor leader; where more than 200,000 Catholics, Protestants and Jews languish in prisons and concentration camps; where five more heads will roll shortly at the command of a "People's Court" at Neukoeolin; where the Government has as a solution for its problems nothing better to offer than sending the youth of the nation into a holocaust that will be far bloodier than that of 1914-18.

Truly, Herr Hitler, yours is a different Germany, only a thousand times worse than that of the Kaiser; and rest assured that 80 per cent of your subjects know it and suffer from it, and you have made it all perfectly clear to the rest of the world.

A GERMAN-AMERICAN.

His Nanny Is Gone.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE activity of police in arresting small storekeepers for making a few sales on Sunday and failing to take action against many of the tavern owners and saloonkeepers who pay no attention to the Sunday closing law gets my nanny. What I should like to know is whether the Police Board is responsible for this condition or whether Chief of Police McCarthy is responsible for this discrimination. Good citizens demand that the laws regulating saloons and 32 taverns be rigidly enforced both as to Sunday closing and general regulation.

FAIRPLAY.

A Reflection on the Senate.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
SENATOR BLACK, in his current investigation of lobbying activities in the Senate, has apparently put that august body in an embarrassing position. If a lobbyist can carry on his activities successfully among Senators, the great blame is to be placed on the Senators themselves rather than on the lobbyist, who, after all is said and done, is betraying no trust and breaking no oath in the pursuit of his calling. The fact that lobbying can be carried on so extensively in the Senate, and with such frequent success, is a blot on the honor and the good names of the men in that body who condone it.

It might not be amiss to add that if Senator Black and his committee were to conduct their investigations with an eye to legislation passed within the last few years, they would in all probability find that when it comes to lobbying, the veterans' organizations and labor unions can put the utilities to shame. That, however, would be asking too much of any group of Senators in an election year.

N.

Nothing Novel.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
WILL someone tell me just why the Italians take so much pride in their women for giving up their gold wedding rings? The people of Holland beat them to the idea several hundred years ago, giving not only wedding rings, but other jewelry. So there is nothing novel about the idea.

MRS. B. GRAHAM.

More Advice to Future Veterans.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
YOUR editorial, "Advice to Future Veterans," contained far more than the intended measure of merit. These youngsters who are to be the fodder upon which the mills of Mars will grind in future wars might well give the matter serious consideration.

If they hope to avoid doing the patriotic service at $1 a day, less deductions for insurance and allotments, while civilian workers draw $1 an hour, farmers sell their produce at top prices and dealers in war materials fatten at the Treasury war chest, they will need the services of the ablest of the able lobbyists.

If instead of making monkey business their objective, they will join the veterans of past wars in their fight for war-time conscription of money and industries as well as men, they can render a patriotic service which will save their country billions of dollars in the next war.

JOSEPH REDMOND.

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

One of the strongest arguments for calling a special session of the Legislature—a course which Gov. Park now has under consideration—is the need for enabling Missouri to qualify for a larger share of the Federal funds available to the states for the care of their aged unemployed and other dependents.

Under the terms of the Federal Social Security Act, passed by Congress last year, the Federal Government will match state payments to indigent persons more than 60 years old, dollar for dollar, up to $15 per month. That is, if the state will provide $15 the Government will give $15, thus making it possible to give these unemployables monthly payments of $30.

No such matching exists in connection with the payment of direct relief. With the launching of the Works Progress Administration, the Federal Government retired from the direct relief field. Under the present arrangement, the cost of all direct relief is borne by the states, with such assistance as local governments may provide.

Since the aged indigent comprise a large proportion of the unemployables, it follows that there is a very close relationship between direct relief and old-age assistance to the needy. The relationship is such that those states which take full advantage of the provisions of the Federal Social Security Act will enjoy a decided financial advantage over those which do not.

What Missouri should do, therefore, is to expand its old-age assistance program so as to qualify for greater matching under the Federal act. This course is dictated, moreover, by the pledge which the Park administration made to the elderly needy that a maximum of $30 a month would be provided for them under the Missouri old-age assistance statute, with the co-operation of the Federal Government. Missouri pension payments thus far, toward which the Federal Government has contributed $300,000, have averaged from $7 to $12 a month. If Missouri is to keep faith with those who require old-age assistance, it will have to expand its pension program. In fact, it will have to expand the pension program whether it keeps faith or not, since there are now only 14,000 applications approved for pension payments, out of a total of about 80,000 received.

The Federal Social Security Act also provides for a contribution of $1 for every $2 which the states and local governments distribute for the care of dependent children and their mothers. As yet, Missouri has done nothing to get Federal payments under this provision. Yet dependent children and their mothers are frequently in the unemployable class and so must be cared for. The question for Missouri is whether the State is to bear the full load in the form of direct relief payments or enjoy the assistance of the Federal Government under Title IV of the Security Act.

If the Legislature is convened, a comprehensive relief program, providing for a continuance of direct relief as needed and opening the way for greater benefits under the Federal Security Act, can be presented. If such a session is not called, Missouri will be forced to bear relief costs which Congress, through the Social Security Act, arranged for the Federal Government to share.

Which shall it be?

MR. PICKWICK TURNS 100.

It was the last of March in 1836. London bookstalls that day offered the first of "The Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club," projected as a vehicle for the sketches of cockney sporting scenes by one Robert Seymour. One hundred years later, no one remembers who the illustrator was, but all the world knows the name of the 25-year-old reporter engaged to write a description of the plates that was to fit them into a connected story in the literary fashion of the times. For it was not only the courtly how of Mr. Pickwick, bald and benevolent, short and shrewd. It was the beginning of Charles Dickens.

Unknown when the first 400 copies were distributed, the young writer was a national character long before the twentieth monthly installment made its appearance. Everyone read Pickwick and laughed at his burlesque of London life.

Yesterday a coach and four bearing a laughing party in high gray hats and greatcoats set out to the blowing of a hunting horn from the site of the old Golden Cross Hotel in the heart of London—whence the first Pickwickian party started—for Gad's Hill, the home of Dickens in his last years. Mr. Pickwick had turned 100. One hundred? Nonsense!

He is as young today as the spring which is coming to the bright English countryside now that April's there. Take him down from the shelf for memory's sake and see.

AERIAL BOMBING IN WAR.

There was a time when war was military science, when armies maneuvered and fought along definite lines of strategy and no harm came to civilians save those who found themselves in the zones of action. In ancient China, it is said, the armies simply maneuvered, and whichever maneuvered the best was accorded the victory, without the need for bloodshed. No such decorum as that ever existed in Western lands, but war was nevertheless a more or less regulated business.

The airplane has changed all that, and the fate of Harar, second city of Ethiopia, shows what has now become. Here was a city of 40,000, open, unfortified, of slight strategic importance. Nevertheless, 15 or 20 Italian planes bombed Harar with incendiary bombs for two hours Sunday. The attack reduced most of the city to ashes and debris, sparing neither hospitals nor churches, homes nor business buildings. The conventions and customs of war that forbade the bombardment of non-military points went for nothing in the wanton attack.

That might be the fate of virtually any European city in the event of war on the Continent. The invading squadrons would not always give the inhabitants warning by flying over the city for several hours before loosing their bombs, circumstance that prevented tremendous loss of lives at Harar. The map of Europe shows that every European city, save those far in the interior of Russia, is within bombing range of its foreign neighbors. Civilian non-combatants, far from the front, thus will feel war's fury to the fullest, a fury hitherto vented chiefly on the actual combatants.

The bombing plane has contracted the distances on the map to insignificance. It has put virtually every citizen of every country into a position potentially as dangerous as the front lines once were. Unless the statesmen of Europe succeed in their efforts to keep the peace, scenes of destruction like those in Harar Sunday may be witnessed some day in Paris, London, Berlin, Moscow, Vienna or Rome, or in all of them.

FOR A LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

William Hirth, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Missouri, believes the State should have a legislative council, apparently along the lines of that operating in Kansas, for two purposes: (1) to suggest desirable legislation to future sessions, (2) to make a "complete survey of our existing machinery of local and State government, with the view of eliminating all possible waste in every department, and of increasing efficiency."

As it is, the Legislature meets only once every two years, and its sessions, for the most part, are masterpieces of confusion. In recent years, we have had no Governor who has exercised the kind of leadership which is necessary to put over an intelligent and coherent program. The Governor proposes; a small group of old-time politicians in the Senate disposes. Since 1927, for example, they have constituted themselves the firing squad for one of the State's bitterest needs: a reformed system of criminal procedure.

In the intervals between the biennial sessions, the Legislature rests, but the problems of the State are continuous. There is no question that a legislative council, sitting permanently in observation of the State's business, could render magnificent service. Such a council could carefully draw needed legislation and have it ready to present when the sessions convened, thus giving them direction and coherence. Certainly, the present relief crisis would never have occurred if the State were governed as it should be.

Mr. Hirth points out that, whereas the 1905 Legislature appropriated only $12,000,000 for the biennium, the last session appropriated "the staggering sum of $144,000,000, and with millions of dollars of increased revenue from the sales tax and from liquor and the State income tax, only recently the State administration borrowed $750,000 with which to meet its payrolls." Of course, much of the increased cost of State government has gone for the construction of roads and for other indispensable needs of the modern age; nevertheless, there is no doubt that the administration of Missouri on a thoroughly business-like basis would save great sums of money.

Just now, as Mr. Hirth shows, the State has had a windfall of new revenue in the form of the sales and liquor taxes. In the case of the sales tax particularly, it was the public expectation that it was to be spent for relief and old-age pensions. Under an absurdly inelastic statutory rule, one-third of the sales tax has to be devoted to the schools, but even the remaining two-thirds has not been entirely devoted to relief and old-age pensions. The former has received only $6,000,000, which sum is now practically exhausted. What has become of the remainder?

One would suppose that, with millions of new revenue dropped into its lap, the State administration would have no difficulty meeting emergency needs, yet Gov. Park insists that provisions for relief until the end of the year would require new tax legislation. We agree with Mr. Hirth that misgovernment of the State has reached a point where the citizens should demand the introduction of new methods and new faces at Jefferson City.

A NATION OF YES-MEN.

The results of Germany's "plebiscite" came up to the expectations of the Nazis' highest expectations. They could not have been otherwise. Only one voting space, and that marked "Ja," appeared on the ballot. Nazis were in charge of the polls and counted the votes. Of the 44,954,937 ballots, it is announced that only 543,026 were thrown out as invalid. These were the spoiled ballots and those on which daring dissenters wrote "Nein." The Hitler vote thus was 98.79 per cent of the whole.

Absentees from the polls totaled 473,704, making in all 1,016,730 eligible voters who did not cast their ballots for Hitler. How many of this million are anti-Nazis it is, of course, impossible to say. In view of the methods used, no valid conclusions whatever may be drawn from the vote figures, either as to the people's support of the Hitler policies or as to the extent of the underground opposition.

The whole thing can best be put down as an instance of a nation obeying a dictator's command in compliant fashion. A free ballot on Nazi foreign policies doubtless would show a high percentage of approval. On the other hand, a vote on domestic policies, if freely conducted, would disclose a large number of dissenters, in view of the Nazi tactics in the fields of labor, religion, economics, civil rights, etc.

No free ballot can be expected in Germany so long as the Nazi regime endures, however. Yes-men, not independent thinkers, are what a dictatorship requires.

A LUXURY THE CITY CAN AFFORD.

For the first time since 1930, the Symphony Society has felt impelled to make a public request for funds. In that year, 1500 persons contributed more than $190,000 to insure the continued life of the orchestra and, in the ensuing years, several hundred persons have generously made up the annual deficits. But the number of contributors is dwindling and the point has been reached where, if the annual gifts of comparatively small number of persons were lost through death or removal from the city, the orchestra's plight would become desperate. The society, therefore, hopes to broaden its list of contributors to guard against such a crisis.

It may be news to some persons that the orchestra cannot live on box seat subscriptions, even if every performance were sold out. As a matter of fact, the season now drawing to a close was highly satisfactory in attendance, but revenues were nevertheless insufficient. If box offices prices were raised to a point where capacity attendance would pay all expenses, the maneuver would defeat itself because it would make it impossible for hundreds of persons to continue their attendance. The best way out, therefore, is to obtain voluntary contributions.

The orchestra is thus a luxury, but a luxury St. Louis can well afford. Its existence is one of the factors that make St. Louis rank as a metropolis rather than an overgrown village. For 56 years, the orchestra has added much to the enjoyment and cultural development of our citizens, and for it to be discontinued would be a dreary prospect. Surely, there will be a hearty response to the society's request for funds.

THAT GERMAN ELECTION.

Index of American Morale

"Have we been licked?" asks writer, and answers, "We are down but not completely out"; though we are groggy, morale of people has not been destroyed, for we are still asking questions; nation has vast powers, but doesn't know how to use them; observer hopes America will have the courage to build a decent, healthy society.

Eduard C. Lindeman, Professor of Social Philosophy, New York School of Social Work, in Survey Graphic.

HOW fares the American soul? Or is use a more modern expression, what has the depression done to the American psyche? Some such question as this agitates the minds of all earnest citizens who look toward the future. But "soul" and "psyche" are not the proper nouns: we must go to a lower level, to the street level, to find the phrase which appropriately expresses the concern of the thoughtful citizen. What he really wants to know is this: Have we been licked?

Is it true: The bigger they come the harder they fall? That's what prizefighters say. Well, we've been in a fight. We have fastidiously the canvas. We are trying hard to struggle to our feet, to stand straight once more. It's hard to see straight when you're groggy. Everything looks queer, distorted on the bias. "Screwy" that's the new word for it. Everything looks screwy. What's that big bum who socked me on the chin when I wasn't looking?

Perhaps I've stretched my street-level analogy too far, but this is the way it appears to me: The depression has destroyed the morale of the American people. No, "destroyed" is too strong a word, because we are still asking questions, and that means we are still groping for answers. We are not but not completely out. We may not be asking the right questions, and certainly the answers which have thus far been proposed are not the right answers. For example, the curtailment of production cannot possibly be the right answer when 59 per cent of the people of the United States are forced to live at or below a subsistence level. (Estimated at $600 to $1000 annual income per family—1932.)

What lies ahead for America? There is no telling. Out of existing chaos and confusion may come complete disintegration, prolonged and deadly mediocrity, or rebirth accompanied by enthusiasm and a new sense of direction.

We possess the means out of which might be created a fine, decent, healthy society. All necessary ingredients are there: natural resources, machines, technologists and workers. We behave irrationally at present because, in Emerson's words, we have been subduced by our means; we have brought into existence vast powers, but we do not know what ends these are to serve, and consequently we have failed to provide suitable institutions for the control and release of these powers. It is unthinkable that we should finally shrink from taking the heroic steps which might translate the American dream into reality, but a respect for objectivity compels me to say that we shall first pass through an era of timorous expediency, of artificial prosperity and of accompanying poverty.

In the meantime, those of us who have faith in the future of America can only cling to that partially remaining virtue of our earlier democratic inheritance, namely, freedom. We must insist upon the right to struggle for justice.

ALABAMA AND THE DEMON.

From the New Orleans Item.
THE Alabama House passes a prohibition bill, 64 to 31. It must go, if passed, to the polls. The measure would tax hard liquors 80 cents a gallon and wine and beer 10 cents, and give a beverage commission autocratic powers to regulate sale and distribution of whisky.

Whether Alabama stays "dry" or goes "wet" is of minor moment to the undiscriminating thirsty in that State. What government fails to provide, or prohibits outright, a kindly providence and a multitude of discreet distillers will supply, albeit their mountain dew may occasionally play hob with the human innards.

All of this is known, of course, to Alabamians, to the crusading foes of Demon Rum no less

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON. March 31. FRIENDS who talked with Herbert Hoover during his recent New York visit are saying he is not under the collar at Gov. Alf Landon.

Trouble seems to be Landon's deal with Gov. Merriam of California for control of the State's delegation.

Hoover wants an uninstructed delegation, but one that will take orders from him. He views the Landon-Merriam trade as a personal affront. And when he read about it in the papers, he called up Landon by long-distance telephone and protested.

According to the account Hoover gave his friends, this is what Landon replied:

"Well, Mr. Hearst wanted me to enter the California field, and in a choice between you and Mr. Hearst I think it best I follow Mr. Hearst's wishes."

Young Democrats.

FRANK WICKHEIM, 24-year-old Sioux Falls (S. D.) attorney, probably owns his election as president of the Young Democrats to a group of bearded, barefoot men in homespun clothes. One day last August they trailed into the gay dining room of a leading Milwaukee hotel. They sat down and ordered dinner.

When soup was brought, they frowned, ordered a big punch bowl, poured their individual portions into the common bowl, and all proceeded to eat from that.

When dinner was over, they walked out, picked up band instruments they had left in the lobby, and began to play riotous tunes, while followers shouted, "We Want Wickhem!" "Wickhem for President!"

It was Wickhem's "Mennonite Band" and it helped materially in putting across his election as head of the Young Dems as head of Jimmy Roosevelt's opposition.

Today Wickhem has started a campaign, under Jim Farley's direction, to line up the youth of the country for Roosevelt.

Lack of Intelligent Opposition Will Give Administration a "Mandate for More and Madder Monkey Business."

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, March 31.

GODEN MILLS is out for Gov. Landon. All that remains to complete the political portrait of this candidate is for Herbert Hoover, Ed Hutton and the Liberty League to come through.

There is no tangible "money trust." At the corner of Broad and Wall Street, there is no such sulphurous den of devils, horned and personal, as my mid-Western mother and a good many million others confidently believe. But we do have a group of gentlemen who think what their fathers thought—and for no other reason. They sincerely believe that Government should do nothing about business or agriculture, because, in the days of our grandfathers, it wasn't necessary.

Between them and the dangerous dizziness that is now going 'round and 'round, there is a middle course toward which the great bulk of Americans yearn "as pants the hart." But who pants to return to Hooverian reaction? A small group.

It is hard to define—but anybody who has been about a bit could identify any one of them in the dark. They are careful men. When they endorse a candidate they know what they are doing. Their endorsement tags him as well as themselves.

They are entitled to their opinion, but why can't they wake up?

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mills are symbols of them and of disaster. Both ought to retire into silence. The Liberty League potlatch was so devoid of hope for what most people want that it turned the ebbing tide of New Deal popularity.

Any administration needs an intelligent, statesmanlike opposition. This one hasn't had it and now it appears that it isn't going to get it, even in the campaign. As matters now stand, it will go into office with what can only be construed as an overwhelming popular mandate for more and madder monkey business.

LECTURE ON VERDI'S 'REQUIEM'

Symphony Chorus Director to Describe Work to Be Given.

William E. Heyne, director of the St. Louis Symphony Chorus, will discuss the Verdi "Requiem Mass," which the symphony and chorus will present at the regular concerts this week at a lecture Friday morning at 11 o'clock in the auditorium of the Wednesday Club, Westminster place and Taylor avenue, Glendale.

The lecture, which is open to the public, is sponsored by the Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Society. Miss Edith Gordon, chorus accompanist, will illustrate the lecture at the piano. Four soloists will assist the orchestra and chorus at the regular concerts, Jeanette Vreeland, soprano; Rose Bampton, contralto; Dan Gridley, tenor; and Keith Falkner, bass-baritone.

CORINNE FREDERICK IN BEETHOVEN RECITAL

Pianist Appears in Second Program of Sonatas at Hotel Coronado.

The second recital in Corinne Frederick's serial performance of the first 16 Beethoven piano sonatas drew a larger audience than did the previous one to the Crystal Room at Hotel Coronado. In spite of this, the atmosphere of intimacy and of intense critical curiosity toward the music which had been dominant before persisted through last night's concert. The mutual understanding which attaches to these programs sets them apart. Last night it was devoted to five of the early sonatas, Opus 7; Opus 10, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and Opus 13, "The Pathétique."

Distracting noises combined with the pianist's apparent preference for the second part of her program to make the first two sonatas less interesting than those that followed; their content explains the preference, while not accounting for some imperfect phrasing and cloudy articulation of the fast runs that was noticeable. Beginning with Opus 10, No. 2, however, the performance suddenly became inspired and the attention of the audience seemed electric.

The third Opus 10 sonata, which contains the most keenly sentient writing and builds up the most exalted mood found in any of the sonatas on this program, was played in Miss Frederick's most sympathetic manner. That implies a degree of excellence not often surpassed by the greatest of the established performers. Miss Frederick approaches a work of this stature with what amounts to self-abnegation, becoming a precision instrument for the measuring of the musical ideas. The result, far from being impersonal, is one of the most satisfactory imaginable.

Last night's performance of the third Opus 10 sonata carried the authority of direct communion. It was vibrant with Beethoven's inner meaning. Technically this sonata and the one that immediately preceded it were distinguished by Miss Frederick's remarkable gift for endowing various voices with as much individuality as they receive in an orchestral treatment. This was no more noticeable in the legato passages than it was in the most emphatic staccato ones; the musical figurations seemed to take on colors not attainable on the piano, to call and answer as if they had been the voices of disembodied instruments distributed about the room. But most important of all the elements manifest in the performance was the reverent and affectionate understanding the soloist showed toward her master, the composer.

MRS. LOUISE ALLEN FUNERAL

Services for Widow of George W. Allen to Held Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hoel Allen, formerly of Webster Groves, who died Sunday of heart disease and complications at her home in Minneapolis, Minn., will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at Wagoner's chapel, 3621 Olive street, followed by burial in Valhalla Cemetery.

She was the widow of George W. Allen, for many years connected with the Bell & Zoller Coal Co. Surviving her are her son, James E. Allen of Minneapolis; her stepson, Draper Allen of Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. C. L. Pyle of Fort Smith, Ark., and Mrs. L. B. Farris of Alva, Okla.

COL. EDWARD CARPENTER DEAD

Husband of Former Janet Lee of St. Louis.

The funeral of Col. Edward Carpenter, who died of a heart attack Sunday in New York, will be held tomorrow in Arlington, Va. He was 63 years old and had been in retirement about three years. His last post was military attaché at Berlin.

He made his home in Warrenton, Va., with his wife, the former Miss Janet Lee, whose father was William H. Lee, president of the old Merchants-Laclede National Bank. Mrs. Taylor S. Carter of Oakleigh lane and Ladue road, a sister-in-law, also survives.

Funeral for Mrs. E. H. Parker.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Parker, former St. Louis public school teacher, who died yesterday of pneumonia at St. Mary's Hospital, will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Wacker-Heldreiter mortuary, 3634 Gravois avenue, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mrs. Parker, who was 46 years old, taught at the Jefferson School, 903 Wash street, from 1910 to 1913, when she was married.

4300 CITY EMPLOYES JOIN WELFARE SOCIETY

Secretary Says Association, Formed Month Ago, Has $5000 in Treasury.

George B. Tracy, secretary of the Efficiency Board and of the newly organized Public Employees' Welfare Association, told reporters today that about 4300 of the 6600 city employees had joined the association since it began receiving applications for membership about a month ago. The association, Tracy said, has about $5000 in the treasury, and payments of dues, on the basis of 4300 members, should average about $5000 monthly.

Tracy said that he believed the association would ultimately have about 6400 members, paying dues of $6000 a month. The dues are 1 percent of the member's monthly salary, payable each month, and, as has been told, are to be used to obtain group insurance, organize a credit union, and take the place of the customary contributions for political purposes. Tracy said it was doubtful whether the dues could also be used for contributions to United Relief, Inc., although they might be sufficient for contributions to the Salvation Army, Boy Scouts and other smaller charities.

Fire Chief John J. O'Boyle told a Post-Dispatch reporter that about 50 firemen had applied for membership through his office, and Tracy estimated that an additional 200 firemen have joined through his office, including most of the 150 District Chiefs, captains and lieutenants. A majority of the 960 members of the Uniformed Firemen's Association, the firemen's union, voted against joining the association two weeks ago.

Persons politically hostile to Mayor Dickmann have charged that the association was organized to build up a personal political organization for the Mayor, but he has denied this and stated that impetus for the association came from the city employees themselves.

CREDIT INFLATION ON MARCH'

Head of Investment Bankers Blames Government Deficits.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Orrin Wood of Boston, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, said yesterday he believed inflation, nudged along by mounting Government budget deficits, was now "marching slowly down the road of credit expansion."

He spoke before the Central States group of the association. Wood said he could think of "no worse curse to the country" than inflation. Devaluation of the dollar, he said, and a determination of the Government to push its policy of low interest rates to the limit have created "potential credit very much larger than we have ever seen." He urged members of Central States group to "educate the public that they don't want inflation," and contended that "if the public doesn't want it, we won't have it."

50 Pet. Jury Duty Reported.

C. S. Cullenbine, attorney, in a radio talk last night, said that of more than 30,000 men summoned for jury duty in St. Louis courts last year, only about 15,000, or one-half, actually served as jurors. The 15,000 who did not serve, he declared, were shirking a duty. His address was one of a series of talks sponsored by the Bar Association, which is endeavoring to improve jury conditions.

COMPROMISE ON DELEGATES TO DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

English and Hannegan Agree to Both Factions.

Recorder of Deeds John P. English, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, and a leader of the party faction opposing Mayor Dickmann, told reporters at City Hall yesterday that he had reached an agreement with Robert E. Hannegan, Twenty-first Ward committeeman, and a member of the Mayor's faction, to select compromise slate of delegates to the party's State convention at Joplin May 5.

Under the agreement, English said, both factions will have representation on the slate of ward delegates, who will be selected at ward mass meetings on a date to be fixed by the City Committee at a meeting next Tuesday. St. Louis has been allotted 654 delegates to the State convention, one delegate for each 250 votes cast here for United States Senator Harry S. Truman in 1934.

The compromise was made possible, English said, because both factions favor the renomination of President Roosevelt and are supporting Maj. Lloyd C. Stark of Louisiana, Mo., for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

The delegates to the State convention will elect delegates-at-large and ratify the selection of congressional district delegates to the party's national convention at Philadelphia in June.

EPIDEMIC IN MILWAUKEE DECREASES AFTER TWO DIE

City Health Officials Say Strange Malady Has Attacked More Than 100,000 Persons.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 31.—Health officials reported today the epidemic which they said caused two deaths and attacked more than 100,000 persons had reached a turning point.

"I think the peak has been reached and the case load will diminish rapidly," asserted Dr. John P. Koehler, Health Commissioner.

Dr. Koehler figured one-fifth of Milwaukee's population was afflicted in the most widespread outbreak ever experienced here.

While residents were urged to continue their drinking water, Dr. Koehler said it was not the cause of the strange epidemic. Superintendent H. P. Bohmann of the Water Department said tests showed the water was above Federal public health service standards.

The death of Henry Zobel, 48 years old, a deck hand, was the second reported. He was stricken yesterday aboard the steamer Nevada and died en route to a hospital.

The illness has been termed "intestinal influenza" but Dr. Koehler said it was not an accurate description. The malady has swept through whole families. It was first reported among school children.

MAJORITY OF DELEGATION FROM KENTUCKY FOR LANDON

14 of 22 So Instructed; State Convention to Pick Representatives at-Large Today.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 31.—With at least 14 of Kentucky's 22 delegates to the National Republican Convention instructed for the presidential nomination of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, 1970 delegates from 120 counties gathered here today for the State convention. Selection of delegates-at-large to the national convention was the principal business.

Fourteen delegates from seven of the State's nine congressional districts were instructed for Landon at district conventions yesterday. Another district, comprising urban centers in the northern part of the State, chose two uninstructed delegates.

SENTENCED TO DIE BY GAS

P. H. Carroll First Man So Condemned in Wyoming.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 31.—Paul H. Carroll was sentenced yesterday to die in the lethal gas chamber at the State penitentiary April 8 for the murder of C. C. Barnard, division superintendent of the Union Pacific Railroad, here last October.

Carroll is the first man to be condemned to die in the lethal chamber in this State. Court officials said a year may elapse before the sentence can be carried out.

Prints Landon as Nominee.

TOPEKA, March 31.—Gov. C. Douglas Buck of Delaware, here yesterday to confer with Gov. Alf M. Landon, predicted the Kansas Governor would be the Republican presidential nominee. "In my opinion," the Delaware Chief Executive said, "Gov. Landon has the best chance of any of those being mentioned to be nominated." Gov. Buck was one of three prominent Republicans who were luncheon guests at the Governor's residence. The others were E. F. Colladay, National Committeeman for the District of Columbia, and J. Reuben Clark, Salt Lake City, former Ambassador to Mexico.

YOU can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy, following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barber Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself for very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. Barber imparts color to hair and makes it soft and shiny. It soft and shiny and takes years off your looks. It will not color scalp, if applied correctly—does not rub off.

No Severance of Relations.

The action of the Iranian Government does not represent a severance of diplomatic relations.

The communication said that future relations between the two governments would be conducted through the American Legation at Teheran where, the hope was expressed, friendly co-operation of the past would be continued.

At the State Department no formal statement was forthcoming although officials privately expressed regret at the Iranian Government's action.

In diplomatic quarters attention was called to the fact that the press of Iran is under the direct control of the Government and that consequently it is difficult for officials there to understand the situation as regards American newspapers.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 31.—An appeal to the State Supreme Court from the order of Circuit Judge Nike G. Sevier in allowing fees to Guy M. Sone as custodian of funds in the 16 2-3 per cent fire insurance rate case and T. S. Mosby, by his counsel, was filed today by the State Insurance Department.

Judge Sevier March 3 allowed $500 a month to Sone, who is also Circuit Clerk, and $1000 a month to Mosby since their appointment three years ago.

Prior to the order, approximately $11,500 and $20,500 had been paid Sone and Mosby, respectively. Sone is custodian of approximately $750,000 in unpaid funds from excess premium collections from 1930 to 1935.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DEFENSE BEGINS IN SUIT TO OUST BREWERY HEAD

Depositions of Mrs. Louise E. Conrades and Otto F. Conrades, Her Son, Read.

Depositions of Mrs. Louise E. Conrades and her son, Otto F. Conrades, were read for the defense today in the Stifel family suit, in its sixth day's hearing before Circuit Judge John W. Joynot. Mrs. Conrades and another son, Paul E. Conrades, and the Stifel Estate Co., are plaintiffs in the suit against her nephew, Carl G. Stifel, and Stifel's Union Brewing Co., for an accounting and for removal of Stifel at-large.

Milton Yawitz, attorney for Stifel said Mrs. Conrades' deposition was introduced as "an admission against interest." Mrs. Conrades and her son Otto were in court when the depositions were read. Neither of them had testified in the plaintiffs' case.

Mrs. Conrades said in the deposition that she was the sister of Carl G. Stifel's father the late Otto F. Stifel, founder of Stifel's Union Brewing Co. She said she owned 20 shares of stock in the brewing company, and that in addition she was a large stockholder in the Stifel Estate, which held stock of the brewing company.

Says She Was "Like a Mother."

She testified that she was "like a mother" to her nephew, Carl Stifel, in his early years, and that he spent more time at her home than at his own. She said her relations with her brother Otto were friendly up to the time of his death. "We did our full duty toward him," she said, apparently referring to the family settlement of Otto F. Stifel. The brewer ended his life in 1920.

She told of lending $100,000 to Otto F. Stifel in January, 1920, and taking an option on his share in the Stifel Estate, the estate being that of their father, Charles G. Stifel. She said she later exercised the option.

After Otto Stifel's death, she said, she and Carl Stifel were friendly until he started making trouble for us, and threatened to sue us if we didn't do certain things he told us to. She said this changed her feeling toward Carl, and when asked whether she still loved him, replied, "How could I after all that?"

Sued by Carl Stifel.

She related that, several years after his father's death, Carl Stifel filed suit against her, charging that the estate stock obtained by her from Otto Stifel greatly exceeded the amount of her $100,000 loan. When asked if she thought Carl had acted dishonestly, she said, "I wouldn't use that term; I think he was unfair in the way he handled this business."

Mrs. Conrades was asked about the contract with the Falstaff Brewing Corporation, which is at issue in the present suit. By the contract, Falstaff in 1933 leased the Stifel brewing plant at 3126 Gravois avenue, at a rental of $1.25 per barrel of beer produced the first year, and $1 a barrel thereafter. The contract also provided that Falstaff might employ Carl Stifel in the rehabilitation of the plant, and make its own terms of agreement with him. Under this clause, has been testified, Carl received 75 cents a barrel, making his compensation in the first year and a half $5,532.75. The plaintiffs in the present suit have charged that the barreage rate paid to Carl Stifel should have been made part of the rental, paid to the brewing company.

A "Side Agreement."

Mrs. Conrades said she first heard from her son Paul, secretary of the brewing company, that "Carl was accepting money from Falstaff, on a side-agreement, which belonged to the brewing company."

Otto F. Conrades stated in his deposition that he first knew of the barreage payment to Carl Stifel when he heard Joseph T. Davis, attorney for Falstaff, say in a conference that Falstaff could not go on paying $2 a barrel for use of the Stifel plant. The $2 included Carl's 75 cents. The witness admitted that he considered the $1.25 a barrel specified in the lease to be fair rental. He said he asked Paul Conrades why he agreed to the clause permitting employment of Carl Stifel, and that Paul said he did not wish to endanger consummation of the lease, but that the matter would have to be watched.

Attorney Davis, first defense witness, testified yesterday to the terms of the lease. He was preceded by Alvin Griesedieck, vice-president and general manager of Falstaff, as a witness for the plaintiffs. He said the barreage rent arrangement was unprofitable to Falstaff, and that the present lease, at a flat rate of $75,000 a year, became necessary.

Frances K. Hutchinson Dies.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 31.—Mrs. Frances K. Hutchinson, 78 years old, author of several books on travel and nature and the widow of Charles L. Hutchinson, financier and civic leader, died yesterday. She founded the Illinois Wildflower Society and recently deeded her 73-acre estate at Lake Geneva, Wis., to the University of Chicago for the study of botany. An arboretum on the estate contains all plants and trees indigenous to the Midwest.

Veteran Auctioneer Dies at Pana.
PANA, Ill., March 30.—Col. Otis Slater, who in the last 40 years, tried more than 10,000 auction sales, died here yesterday. For many years he was Referee in Bankruptcy of the U. S. District Court at Danville.

EMANUEL W. SUTTER FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Grand Nephew of California Gold Rush Pioneer Was 52; Died of Pneumonia.

Funeral services for Emanuel W. Sutter, a grand nephew of John Augustus Sutter, famous California pioneer during the gold rush of 1849, will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. at Miceli & Sons chapel, 1133 North Kingshighway boulevard, with burial in Valhalla Cemetery.

Mr. Sutter died Sunday of pneumonia at the home of a sister, Mrs. H. S. Crawford, at 5029 Cabanne avenue, where he was taken ill unexpectedly several weeks ago. He was 52 years old. His home was at 5024 Raymond avenue. Born in St. Jacob, Ill., he resided until six years ago at Collinsville, where he operated a filling station and electrical shop.

He was a son of Andrew Sutter, a nephew of John Sutter, who was brought to this country by the early Californian and served in the Mexican War and later with Gen. John C. Fremont. John Sutter founded a small empire in California, then lost it and died in poverty. He and other relatives unsuccessfully prosecuted claims against the Federal Government for the loss of his lands, although Emanuel Sutter never filed claims.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Sutter; a son, Emanuel Jr.; a daughter, Miss Ida Sutter, and three other sisters.

16 KILLED, 25 WOUNDED IN CLASH IN MEXICAN TOWN

Fighting Between Catholics and Teachers Said to Have Followed Church Service.

MEXICO, D. F., March 31.—Dispatches to the newspaper El Grafico report that 16 persons were killed and 25 wounded at San Felipe Torres Mochas, in the State of Guanajuato, when Catholics and school teachers clashed Sunday.

The Catholics, leaving church after Mass, the dispatches say, attacked the teachers who were demonstrating on the town plaza.

Armed Agrarians, it is stated, joined in the fighting on the side of the teachers. The dead were said to include several women and children.

THIRD DISTRICT REPUBLICANS INSTRUCTED FOR GOV. LANDON

Of 19 Missouri Delegates So Far Chosen, Eight Are Instructed for Kansas.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TARKIO, Mo., March 31.—District delegates to the Republican National convention, elected yesterday at the Third District convention here, were instructed to vote for Gov. Landon of Kansas for the presidential nomination. Of the 10 Missouri delegates so far chosen eight are instructed for Landon and two are uninstructed. Sixteen district delegates and four delegates-at-large remain to be named.

A. J. Martin of Brainerd, State manager for Frank Knox, attended the convention but found that the Landon supporters had complete control of the district.

Circuit Judge Irra D. Beals of Kingman and George C. Toel of St. Joseph were chosen delegates, and Mrs. Harry Latham of Savannah and Mrs. Rhea Gunn of Bethany, alternates.

After a sharp contest on the floor, Mrs. John Wyeth of St. Joseph was endorsed for Republican National Committeewoman to succeed Mrs. Grace Semple Burlingham of St. Louis, who is not a candidate for re-election. Mrs. Wyeth's opponent is Mrs. Victor Remley of Liberty. Both reside in the Third District and the endorsement of Mrs. Wyeth will elect the committeewoman at the time of the national convention.

National Committeewoman Arthur M. Curtis of Springfield was endorsed for re-election.

IN G. O. P. RACE FOR CONGRESS

George N. Daugherty Seeks Seat Now Held by Cochrane.

George N. Daugherty, a lawyer and president of the Young Republican Club of the Twenty-sixth Ward, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Thirteenth District, now represented by John J. Cochrane, Democrat.

He is 35 years old and resides at 5323 Maple avenue. He was a delegate to the Thirteenth District Republican convention last week and also attended the "grass roots" Republican convention at Springfield, Ill., last June.

FIRST FREE RANGER BICYCLE EARNED BY GUS MONIA, JR.

Gets 12 New Post-Dispatch Subscriptions in Less Than 2 Days by Earnest Effort

The honor of being the first boy to earn one of the FREE RANGER BICYCLES offered by the Post-Dispatch, goes to Gus Monia, Jr., 2722 Blair Ave., 14 years old and an eighth grade student of Ames School.

Gus had always wanted a bicycle. When he saw the Post-Dispatch FREE Ranger offer, he enrolled at once. A day and a half of enthusiastic hustling in his own neighborhood and among his friends brought him the 12 new daily subscriptions necessary to obtain a Ranger.

THE ZEPHYR for Boys

For 40 years the Ranger has been known as the outstanding bicycle of America—famous for quality, performance, tools, materials and workmanship. The Post-Dispatch has the famous "Zephyr" model for boys, the highest grade machine made by the Mead Cycle Co. The Ranger you earn will be completely equipped, all ready to run. Every bicycle is guaranteed for five years. Here are a few of the features; many of them to be had only on the Ranger:

THE ACE for Girls

The Ranger "Ace" model is exactly like the boys' model except that it has a ladies' drop bar frame, the saddle instead of top bar, and this eliminates the tool tank. The rubber pedals are dainty, ladies' size.

Any Boy or Girl Living in the Campaign Area (See Below) May Earn A FREE RANGER!

Just Get 12 New 6-Months' Subscriptions to the Daily (Without Sunday) Post-Dispatch

The Plan Is Simple, but There Are a Few Necessary Requirements. Please Read Them Carefully to Avoid Misunderstanding:

12 subscriptions are required—each for 6 months. No extra credit for yearly subscriptions.

NEW subscriptions are required, from persons who are not now readers—whether single-copy buyers or home-delivered subscribers—of the Daily Post-Dispatch.

DAILY subscriptions are required. No credit is allowed for Sunday subscriptions.

HOME-DELIVERED subscriptions are required. You pay no money, deliver no newspapers. Carrier will deliver to the subscriber and collect for the Post-Dispatch each month at the regular carrier-delivered rate of 75 cents a month.

CAMPAIN AREA includes St. Louis and Suburbs in Missouri and East St. Louis, Belleville, Granite City, Venice and Madison in Illinois, with these exceptions:

Business district readers are better served by newspaper boys. Boys and girls living in the following restricted areas are not eligible:

St. Louis: Bounded on the North by Cass Ave., on the south by Hickory St., on the west by Grand Ave., on the East by the Mississippi River. East St. Louis: South of Bond Ave. to City Limits and West of Tenth Ave. to Mississippi River.

BOYS & GIRLS connected in any way with the sale or delivery of the Post-Dispatch are not eligible.

Do you know the price of Mount Vernon now?

TODAY the premium is off the price. This lordly whiskey is plentiful again. Try its suave and mellow goodness. A square whiskey in a square bottle, four and one half years old and full 100 proof—mild Mount Vernon straight rye is bottled in bond under U.S. Government supervision. At better bars, cafes and lounges order it for your smoother, milder cocktails, highballs and "straights." Get it at stores for home occasions.

The U.S. Government has the most rigid standards of any country in the world, the result of which is that four years aging in barrels, freedom from addition of younger spirits, and bottling at full 100 proof.

STANLEY EPSTEIN BANKRUPT; LISTS
$176,000 IN DEBTS

Real Estate Dealer Files Voluntary Petition in Federal Court—Puts Assets at $745.

Bequests of $10,000 cash and 30 shares of stock in the A. & E. Goodwin Printing Co. are made to two other friends, Miss Nona Plummer, an employee, and Robert Duffy. William F. Powers, business associate, will receive 110 shares of the company's stock; Robert E. Goodwin, a brother, 40 shares, and Joseph E. Goodwin, a nephew, 40 shares.

E. St. Louis Dies Suddenly. Thomas Simpson, 3932 Converse avenue, East St. Louis, died suddenly yesterday, while seated in a chair in a waiting room at the office of Dr. C. E. Hill, 327 Murphy Building, East St. Louis. He had been receiving treatment for heart disease. Simpson, a mechanic, was 30 years old.

The voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court today by Stanley Epstein, real estate dealer, listing total liabilities of $176,000 and total assets of $745. The liabilities included unsecured claims of $137,271, secured claims, $36,230; Federal taxes, $2500, and State, county and city taxes, $500. The larger items among the assets included furniture and fixtures in his office at 822 Chestnut street, $150; automobile, $150; unliquidated claims, $130; machinery and tools, $150; cash on hand, $16, and property in reversion, remainder and trust, $409.

The unsecured claims were largely notes and accounts on debts contracted in 1929, 1930 and 1931. Some of the larger items listed included $35,000 in notes held by B. Lissberger & Co., New York City; $35,000 in notes held by the estate of Clare Epstein, University City; notes for $32,000 for money loaned by Mignon G. Heidenrich, 6641 Pershing avenue, University City; an account of $17,100 owed the Phillips Construction Co., St. Louis, and notes for a $10,000 loan held by the Reliable Loan & Investment Co., St. Louis.

The secured claims included one of $20,000 by Jacob Rubin & Sons, Wainwright building, and one of $10,000 by Asa Loudon, 4963 Maffitt avenue, both secured by life insurance policies.

Epstein was formerly head of the real estate firm of Stanley Epstein, Inc., against which an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in June, 1929, a week after a receivership suit had been filed against the company. The receivership suit was later dismissed.

At that time, Epstein, who had started in the real estate business in 1922 with assets of $7,84, told the Post-Dispatch that his financial difficulties were not due to the failure of his far-flung "Stanley Epstein projects," but to the collapse in 1927 of the Mortgage Holding and Investment Co., which he had organized to expand his operations.

He resides at the Roosevelt Hotel, Delmar boulevard and Euclid avenue. He has a petition for divorce pending against his second wife, Mrs. Edna Epstein, whom he married in September, 1929, a few days after divorcing his first wife. The second Mrs. Epstein obtained a divorce Oct. 6, 1934, and was remarried to Epstein last November.

JOBLESS YOUNG WOMAN GETS NUDIST STENOGRAPHIC PLACE

Recommended by Federal Re-Employment Service; Member of Nature Colony at Miami.

TAMPA, Fla., March 31.—Helena Hardy, ill and jobless for several weeks, today was a full-fledged nudist stenographer under the shade of an oak tree on the shore of Lake Thonotassa.

A typewriter mounted on a table constituted the office furniture for the slender, 25-year-old blonde. She was an employee and nudist member of the American Gymnosophical Association, which means nudist colony in practical application.

Some days ago Herman Soshinski, director of the nudist group at Lake Thonotassa, advertised for a stenographer who would subscribe to nudist ideas. Yesterday he had 60 young women applicants for the job.

Miss Hardy, recommended by the Federal Re-employment Service here, was employed on her qualifications, which included five years of interest in nudism, membership in a nudist colony at Miami, and experience as a nurse, in addition to stenographic ability.

JUDGE SAMUEL ALSCHULER, SEVENTH U. S. CIRCUIT, QUIT

Official, Who Has Been Sitting in Chicago, Resigns for Personal Reasons.

By the Associated Press. MIAMI, Fla., March 31.—The resignation of Judge Samuel Alscherler of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit was announced here by Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary of President Roosevelt, yesterday.

Judge Alscherler resigned for personal reasons, it was stated. He has been sitting on the bench at Chicago and his retirement makes two vacancies for the Seventh Circuit.

FINGER-PRINT AUTHORITY DIES

Edward H. Schwartz One of First to Use System.

HACKENSACK, N. J., March 31.—Edward H. Schwartz, 64 years old, one of the first to recognize and prove the value of fingerprints in crime detection and prosecution, died of a heart attack at his home yesterday.

The use of fingerprints was scoffed at in this country in 1911 when he solved a baffling New York murder case with their aid and attracted nation-wide interest to his theories.

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)
Children and April-Fool.
New $10 Coffin-Suit.
Mr. Sloan's Fine Figures.
Australian Uncle.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1936.)

TOMORROW, April first, again brings the pocketbook attached to a string and stuffed with artificial money. Look for the string before you pick up the purse, but don't forget the half dozen that walked smiling past the pocketbook and waited to see who would be "foolish enough" to pick it up. The "foolish enough" one picked up the pocketbook, it had no string, and found much real money in it.

Always let little children "April fool" you, successfully, and be sure to express amazement and indignation after you have been "fooled." That delights their little souls, develops their ingenuity.

P. S. Uncle Sam had his April Fools day in the big war. He sent 10 billion real dollars to his friends in Europe, thinking they would send it back. They did not even say thank you. They said "Shylock."

Everything had been made ready in the Trenton prison yesterday for the killing of Bruno Richard Hauptmann by electricity, when the Pardon Board refused his plea for a stay of execution and Gov. Hoffmann declined to grant a second reprieve.

A "new, neat black suit" had been provided for Hauptmann to wear after the death chair.

Hauptmann's prison costume, "a pair of prison-gray pants, white shirt and bedroom slippers," would do for the electric chair; it must be spoiled, anyhow, by slit-tion one trousers leg to admit the electrode. Hauptmann was to wear the neat new black suit, in the coffin, but would never see it. It was a cheap $10 suit, but able to stand all the wear that the electric chair tenant could give it. Future ages will say that this was a queer "civilization." First it killed a man, then dressed him up, then put him in the ground.

Big business, like little business, has had its troubles, but here and there it is still BIG BUSINESS. In his annual report for General Motors, Alfred P. Sloan Jr. reports net sales last year amounting to $1,155,641,511, against $862,672,670 the year before, a gain of more than $292,000,000. That means more new cars, and families made happier. The company paid out in wages more than $323,000,000, not including wages paid indirectly to thousands of workers producing materials of which automobiles are made.

Those who think we should go back to the days of the ox cart or the horse and buggy, are reminded that manufacturers of buggies would produce for many years before paying workers $323,030,599, the amount that Alfred P. Sloan Jr. paid to his own men in one single year, besides many other hundreds of millions to workers producing materials. It is not such a bad thing for a country to have here and there, men of exceptional ability, and it would be a serious mistake to shoot or even discourage all of them.

A family is told "your uncle, dead in Australia, leaves you 1,000,000 pounds; send money for expenses." It annoys the family to be told "don't send money to that lawyer. You know you have no Australian uncle; there are no 1,000,000 pounds."

It annoys millions of elderly American men and women, and those who collect money from them, to suggest that Uncle Sam cannot and will not pay $200 a month to every man and woman past 60, at a total cost of 24 billion dollars a year. Visions of wealth, even preposterous visions, inflame the imagination; any unwelcome suggestion of fact arouses hatred.

This makes truth-telling hard even for those who know that bitterness, bred of fantastic scheming promises, might discourage those who work to protect the old and poor, with such reasonable pensions as the country might and should pay.

An interesting letter from Tulsa, Ok., signed H. A. Meyer, and addressed to this writer, says, "the people need no longer be told why you take this stand; we all know that a little pin-money from the politicians comes in handy."

The letter says further: "I desire to impress upon your feeble mind that the Townsend O. A. R. P. is the only project that will re-establish the country on a sound basis . . . so just go on with your conglomerated make-up of words, or something about a pelican or other creature of old, randomly picked from an encyclopedia."

Attempting to show the falseness of even the wildest hopes is an

PLANNED OBJECT LESSON

This car was sent over the gorge at Niagara Falls, N. Y., and its shattering fall recorded by a camera so its visual story might be used in the interest of safe driving. Here is the machine as it makes contact.

IN FASHION PARADE

This young woman wears a gray flannel suit with a Breton sailor hat and black accessories at the annual Auteuil fashion showing in France.

COFFEE AND HORSES

Mrs. Eugenia Clair Smith, heiress to a coffee fortune, announces she has bought a racetrack now in construction near her Delmar (Cal.) home. She says Crooner Bing Crosby will be one of her partners.

ARTHUR LOOKS AT THE CAMERA

And the leopard, which makes its home at the Washington (D. C.) zoo, apparently is a little dubious of the whole situation.

"SINGS LIKE PONS"

Rose Seebol is 16 years old and a high school girl in Brooklyn. Her voice is said to resemble that of the Metropolitan's coloratura. She plans to begin a course of study—if she can find the money.

SPRING BUILDING INSPIRATION

Model homes have been placed on exhibit in several of the city's large stores by the Federal Housing Administration in an effort to spur on home builders. Here is one photographed at FHA headquarters in the Ambassador building.

The Best Sign-off

By Ely Culbertson

USUALLY the best "sign-off" is a pass. But with weak hands containing one long suit and neither support for partner's suit nor enough honor tricks to support a no trump contract there are certain cases in which you can show weakness.

The responding hand signs off by making a minimum rebid, in the same suit he previously had bid, at the range of three.

Ely Culbertson Example:
South North
1 heart 2 clubs
2 N.T. 3 clubs

The inference is that the responding hand has a six card or longer suit with about one-half honor trick in the hand, something like ♠J10 3, ♦6, ♣8 5, ♤Q J10 7 5 4.

The responding hand also may sign off after he has given his partner a single raise and his partner made an inferential forcing bid, simply by returning to the original suit at the lowest possible level.

For example:

South North or South North
1 heart 2 hearts 1 heart 2 hearts
3 clubs 3 hearts 2 N.T. 3 hearts

The opening hand signs off in only one situation, when he bids one, two, and then three of the same suit.

For example:

South North
1 heart 1 spade
2 hearts 2 N.T.
3 hearts

Safety Play.

A safety play may be defined as the proper method of playing a suit to avoid the loss of more than a specific number of tricks. As the principle is commonly applied, a player finds he can afford to give up one trick in a suit, but not two! According to the cards held, and their distribution, he can "take out insurance" by playing the cards in such a manner that it is highly unlikely (sometimes impossible) that he will lose more than the unimportant trick. Today's hand contains a good example of such a play.

North, dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

♦A K
♦K Q J
♦K 2
♦Q J 8 5 2

NORTH ♠ J 8 6 5
WEST ♠ A 9 3 2
EAST ♠ Q J 10 9 6
SOUTH ♠ None

The bidding:
North East South West
1 club 1 diam. 2 clubs Pass
2 N.T. Pass 3 N.T.
(final bid)

East opened the queen of diamonds and declarer immediately took stock. In sight were two top diamonds and two top spades. Two hearts also were sure, but only the ace of clubs could be counted on if the lead were relinquished to establish the hearts. And even if they broke 3-3, dummy's fourth heart would bring the total only to eight tricks. Not a good plan, hence quickly abandoned.

The club suit offered a much better opportunity. Unless East held all four of the missing clubs, in which case he must win two tricks, the suit could be established and run with the loss of only one trick. But care was required to guard against the chance of West holding all four. On this basis declarer won the first diamond in the dummy and led a small club away from the ace. West, of course, ducked, and the queen won, east showing out. A low club was returned to the ace and a third round led toward the closed hand. West could take only his king, and nine tricks were made without touching the heart suit.

Declarer committed the common error of playing the club ace and then leading to his hand the contract would be hopeless. West could duck and declarer's jack would be forced to win. West still would hold a tenace position over declarer's clubs.

TODAY'S QUESTION.
Question: I held ♠A 6 5 3, ♦A 9 8 6, ♤A 7 4 2. I bid one no trump, first hand, vulnerable. Was that correct?

Answer: No. With an unbalanced hand such as this you should have bid one diamond. Your 150 aces should not have influenced tators will cause him to be dragged from the ring and retired in disgrace, maybe never to fight again. It is just a question whether it is better to die with honor or live in contempt and disgrace."

QUESTION to be answered by A brave man, of course. Not by a dumb unreasoning beast—they are not consulted—nor by an unreasonable woman. But I did make bold to ask one question of my own. "What about the horses?" And Señor Santa Cruz agreed: "That is indeed the cruel, sad part of the spectacle. And yet, it is not human blood which is spilled as in your prize fight ring. The horses haven't a chance, but," he added brightly, "they are always old horses, ready for the boneyard anyway, and they can die but once. If they do not expire speedily, the ring men come forward with daggers and put them out of their misery."

"I do not hear you waste much pity on the toreros," he observed.

"They do not warrant it, perhaps, not after they have become famous and rich and the idols of the populace. But it is rather a pathetic life they live before they attain their eminence."

"They, too, are set apart for the butling usually when they are very young and their trials of training are more long drawn out and hazardous than those of the bull. It is, as a rule, a profession that descends from father to son or is handed on in families. They come from the peasant class. An old matador will watch a small boy growing up, to detect in him the proper estampa, the poise, quickness, agility, grace, daring, the qualities essential to the successful bull fighter. The little fellow is taken in hand and trained first to fight young bull calves with a little cape. As he becomes professional he must advance through the degrees of peón, picador, bandillero to matador.

"There is glory and wealth to look forward to if he can succeed. It is well worth striving for. They all aspire to be Juanes Belmontes, who are paid $7000 to $10,000 a fight, have their names in the headlines during the season, retire as millionaires and then come back amid great rejoicing for farewell tours. It is proof that it is art and skill, not mere brute strength, that some of the best matadors are quite old."

"The valor and the nonchalance of the accomplished fighter is not always a natural endowment, however. It is acquired and every time he goes into the ring, he must nerve himself anew for what he has to face. He may be skilled in all the fine points of the art or science of the corrida and there is no game

MEANWHILE, he is not unhappy but content to improve his opportunity to see the world and, just now, earn his living as a teacher of Latin languages at the Berlin School here.

"I find much to admire in America, but at the same time, in comparison, much to appreciate in my own country," he said. "I think in Spain we enjoy life, make the best of what we have, more than you do. Here you exist in the present in order to enjoy the future. We, in Spain, live in the present, enjoy what we happen to have and our memories. Here, if you have an automobile you think you cannot get about. In Spain, if we have not a car, we walk and enjoy long tramping tours."

"With us, a man thinks of the heritage he is to leave his children not so much in terms of property as in things of the spirit. In every Spanish house, no matter how impoverished and obscure, you will find the family tree hanging on the wall. Everybody knows about his forebears and reveres them. We are strong on tradition."

"That," he resumed, coming back to the subject of bullfighting, still intent upon clearing up a point of international misunderstanding, "is why bull fighting continues a seeming anachronism in these tame times. It is all bound up in tradition. The ceremony and pageantry are fixed by immemorial custom. There is ceremony at every stage of the game, from the time the processions enter and the Mayor throws the key into the ring until on the occasion of a matador's final retirement from the ring, his cue is shaved off in a public ceremony."

"The tradition and pageantry satisfy an esthetic craving of the Spanish people. Skill and daring enjoyed vicariously provide outlets for the emotions. This older people maintain is desirable or there might be more criminal forms of blood letting than there is among us. Anyway, it seems to have the effect of making Spanish holiday crowds distinguished for docility, gentleness and considerateness toward each other. Certainly, the general disposition of the Spanish people, noted for their politeness and urbanity, is not to be judged by the character of their national pastime."

in which every situation has been so carefully anticipated and provided for. It is really a ritual. Position and form are established for every contingency. The audience is familiar with all the rules, positions, postures, and the players are held to strict accountability. The spectators on the sunny side of the ring express themselves loudly and forcibly, as do the bleacher crowds at your baseball games. The difference is, that in the bull ring it is literally a matter of life and death. In spite of rules and ritual, the unexpected is always likely to happen, and has happened when many a skilled matador has been killed to death.

IT ISN'T a contest of skill and quick thinking and moving between men, but with an angry, unreasoning beast. So the bull fighter must nerve himself as best he can and then he places his faith in the supernatural. They are as class extremely religious. Fanatically religious, it is, indeed, more superstition than religion.

Then after the fight, it is no wonder they relax, try to forget the blood and sand in drinking and carousing.

"I am not a bullfight follower, myself. My tastes are in other directions," concluded young Antonio as he turned to showing his paintings, sketches in a subdued minor key of subjects chosen among monasteries, gypsies, in whom he pointed out great refinement of features, and rugged Basque peasants. And then to talking of the interesting archeological expedition he lately came from at Cuzco among the Inca ruins in Peru. He spoke with confidence in the future fall of the republic in Spain and restoration of the monarchy.

"When the republic was established, my elder brother was the head of our house which was known to be royalist in sympathy, was escorted to the border, and me with him, because I was in the university and the Government which controls all the universities is careful to keep them under republican domination. Student unions can become very dangerous opposing factions. Automatically when you enter a big university, of which there are more than 50 in Spain, the biggest, Salamanca, having more than 8000 students, you become a member of the student union. Students are not divided in groups and fraternities as in universities here, but all become members of one body. By force of numbers student unions have everything their own way. They control the selection of professors, even the deans; if they don't like a faculty member they can oust him and elect his successor. The Government protects the students, seeing that they are not interfered with by the police when on their own grounds. That's why you hear of student riots in the streets when they come out to put down insurrections against the Government and get away with it by seeking sanctuary in the university.

"It is very hard to have to tell children things that hurt them, that seem likely to rob them of their most precious heritage. But if their heritage is one of bitterness one has no choice but to risk the telling. There is always the assurance that once the worst has been told, once the child has faced it and drained its first bitterness, that healing strength comes to the rescue. Fear is killed. Knowledge brings power with it every time and there is always a way to forget, toward a future that holds some good.

IT IS BETTER to have the story told by someone, who loves him. The family doctor, or the clergyman, are willing to help, willing to undertake the duty if there is nobody else; but there should be someone else. That one who has undertaken to care for the child, who has accepted the place of care, the one toward him, ought to have enough love, and the courage of love, to tell it himself.

When a baby is adopted something that speaks of his former parents should be taken along with him. A photograph, a baby garment—even a certificate will do. This should be placed where the child can see it every day of his life. By and by he will be conscious of it and ask about it. Because he has been with the idea all his life the truth will not be so hard to accept as it would be quite unprepared. Love and truth work miracles.

THE HARDEST part of the hard problem is the fear and anxiety of the parent who must bear the burden of the secret. He must prepare himself for the task by ridding himself of all dread, fear or shame.

He must feel that this child is safe with him, must feel as one with him. Then he can tell the story without communicating panic, or any form of fear, to the child. And the hurt child with truth and he cannot remain hurt, or be hurt because of a dread secret.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION
By Martha CarrLife Concerns
Greater Things
Than Individual

Dear Mrs. Carr:
AM a young man in love with a girl five years older than I. I am sure she loves me, but she thinks that, being older, we cannot mean anything to each other. I disagree with her. We are of different religions also.

Could you tell me if this difference of age makes so much difference in marriage and which one should give up their religion?

Five years is not so great a difference in age. Usually it is better for the girl to be younger; but much depends upon who is the more mature.

Religious differences can be adjusted between two persons marrying, only through tolerance and affection. It is better, especially in rearing children, to have one belief and one church in the family life. But change of belief and forms sometimes seem impossible to certain people, and, in that case, husband and wife should follow their own convictions without the disposition to criticize and bicker over the differences. Each may attend the church of his choice, teaching the children the fundamentals of the Christian religion and later allowing them to make their own decisions:

Dear Mrs. Carr:
OULD you please send me a Leap Year party? Our dancing class is to give an entertainment in two weeks and we would like to have this. A. G.

Send me self-addressed stamped envelope and I shall be glad to mail it to you.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

DO you think it right for my mother not to let me wear slacks, shorts and the new divided skirts? I want some terribly, but she won't let me have them.

Your mother probably is like some of the rest of us; having viewed with regret the sights girls sometimes make of themselves in this garb. Perhaps you are one of the girls who does not know just where or how to wear articles of clothing. She knows, as do all people of taste, that slacks and shorts have no place on a city street; nor, for that matter, should divided skirts be worn except for sports.

At the resorts, in the country, in the woods or when some form of sports are being indulged in, riding a bicycle in the country or suburbs—these are the only places where such clothes are permissible. The girls who ride bicycles around the city streets clad (or shall we say, "unclothed") in shorts are not only lacking in taste and grace, but are just plain, dumb-looking.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
WILL you please print again the address of the secretary of the St. Louis Cardinals.

A BASEBALL FAN.

The Cardinal Baseball Club, 3623 Dodier. See telephone book.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

IN answer to the letter signed "Wondering," in which she asks about a troop of older Girl Scouts, I should like to say that an organization of older girls is starting in the Western District for all Scouts 15 years old and over. The first meeting will be held April 1, 1936, at the West Presbyterian Church, 5872 Maple, at 4 o'clock p.m.

She has put too many years in scouting to give up now. It would be nice if she could become a lieutenant. A SCOUT CAPTAIN.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

LAST week your column contained a letter from a young man who had had rather more than his share of misfortune and has been ambitious and a hard worker in spite of this, and who signed his name "Down and Stomped-on."

I believe I may be able to help him and would appreciate it if you will give me his address.

OLDER MAN.

This is the third message I have given this young man in the column, asking that he send in his name and address so that I might forward the very kind offers that have been made in his behalf. As yet I have heard nothing from him. I can understand that he might hesitate to have his misfortune broadcast, but I feel sure that he should know that, outside of the few who would have to know, because of the above reasons, his name, address and his identity will be kept strictly confidential. And so I hope that he will write and avail himself of these offers which are, so evidently, in good faith.

Dear Martha Carr:

LIVE in a small town and last winter was the first time that I have had an opportunity to take dancing lessons, although I have loved dancing all my life and would rather do this than anything else. How can I get information about dancing schools in St. Louis?

Write me again, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will give you names of some dancing schools. Or, you can find a St. Louis telephone book in your Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Two Unusual Questions of Wedding Plans

Ceremony Should Not Be Delayed Because Guests Are Late.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:
I must ask your opinion relative to the double wedding of our daughters because I have been so distressed that I can't sleep worrying about what may have been inexcusable courtesy on our part. The wedding was at the church at 8 o'clock in the evening. Everything seemed to have gone all right. But I breathed a sigh of relief to think there had apparently been no hitch. But I breathed easily too soon, because at the reception I learned the mother and several relatives of one of the grooms arrived at the church after 8 o'clock, and as the bridal party had started up the aisle they stayed in the back of the church. The mother was not angry; in fact, she felt terrible that they should have been late simply because they let visitors detain them at home. Nevertheless, I have learned that other members of this family think the signal for the wedding march should not have been given until the families had been checked. Please be very frank; I'd rather know the truth—better or worse—which it may be.

Answer: I can well imagine how you feel, but as a matter of fact their lateness was without excuse. You see the whole mechanical arrangement of the wedding would have had to be upset on account of a situation that you could not have foreseen. Both brides, your husband and whoever was to walk with the younger bride, all the bridesmaids and you would have had to stand in the vestibule of the church. Meanwhile, the clergyman, the groom and the bestman, having been told that the bride had arrived at the church, would have taken their places standing at the chancel and there would have been a pause that might have been almost calamitous. Moreover, at a double wedding it would have been almost impossible for the ushers to have known whether the members of both families had arrived or not. And even if they had, how long should the bride's party have been kept standing on one side of the closed door while the anxious bridegroom waited and the guests all wondered what was the matter?

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband-to-be is a divorced man with a young daughter, 15. I had practically decided to have my sister as matron of honor and my niece, who is just 18, as bridesmaid, and let them walk together. I don't believe it would be suitable to include his daughter in our wedding party, but I'm perfectly willing to if it is, and if you will tell me how to arrange everything.

Answer: There would be no impropriety in having his daughter walk with your niece, if she would like to and her father would like to have her, and if her own mother also consents.

NO REGRETS

Millicent Is Taken Home by Joe and Early Next Morning Receives a Telephone Call From the "Savage."

CHAPTER TWO.

MILICENT had spent the preceding evening rehearsing. She had worked all day. Her feet ached. Her eyelids dropped with fatigue not entirely physical. She whispered to Joe, "I ought to go home. I have to work tomorrow and I'm terribly tired. But you needn't come with me. I can take a taxi."

"What are you talking about?" Joe said gallantly. "If you want to go we'll go. It's almost 3 o'clock."

"But this will go on for hours," she reminded him.

"I've had enough of it," he insisted.

She seated herself in his car, yawning. "Wasn't it magnificent?"

"You were," Joe said. "That Aztec Indian costume is devastating on blond like you. But I suppose you realized that when you chose it."

"I suppose so," Millicent admitted, lifting her head dress from her tired head.

Joe grinned.

"That's one of the things I like about you, Milly! You don't kid yourself about anything."

"Why should I?" she demanded lazily.

"Most women do," Joe contended.

"You're right, I suppose."

"Millicent spoke cautiously, afraid of waking her mother who would never be able to understand the urgency of a 5 a.m. telephone call.

"This is John Murdock," the savage announced boldly. "Don't tell me you were asleep!"

"For hours!" Millicent replied, concealing her astonishment. "It may surprise you to hear that I am expected to go to work as usual at 9 o'clock."

"At the Chester Moulton Dress Factory where you desirous dresses," he contributed glibly. "But permit me to remind you that it is Saturday and the factory will no doubt close at noon."

"You do though," he said.

"Which?" she teased.

"Both!" Listen, Milly, for a long time I've been wanting to ask you something terribly important."

"Not tonight," she pleaded. "I'm too tired to give you a sensible answer."

He sighed, "Okay! There's no use I guess but you know how I feel in case you ever change your mind."

Millicent told herself she didn't know. She refused to admit that Joe's fondness was anything more than friendly affection. Tomorrow he'd be glad she hadn't let him declare himself. Years ago her brother had told her never to believe anything a man said after 10 o'clock.

She told Joe goodnight and hurriedly closed the door of her apartment on Lombard street. It was cold. The heat, never quite sufficient, had been turned off hours ago. Millicent tossed her costume upon a chair, dashed into pajamas and crept beneath the blankets on the studio couch. There were twin beds in the bedroom but she knew her mother wouldn't go back to sleep if she were disturbed.

Millicent closed her eyes and immediately became conscious of lights and music and the glowing image of the sun god which slowly-blurred into the face of a bronzed savage warrior whose gray eyes changed from innocence to tenderness as his lips met hers. The blare of jazz bands beating across her dream shrilled into the ringing of the telephone.

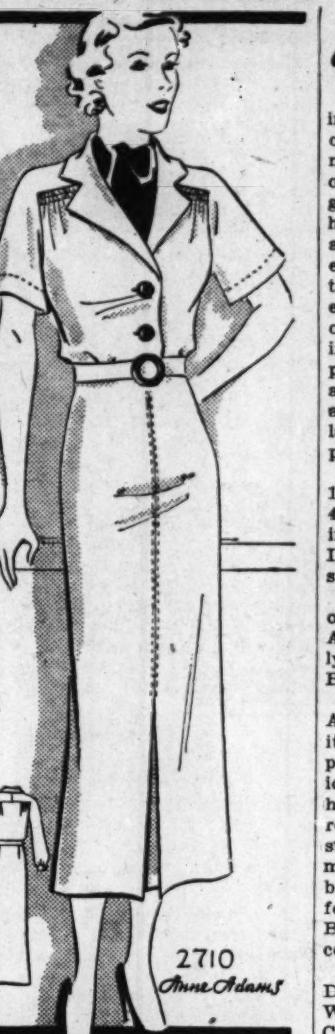

Sitting up in bed she reached for it, wondering who could possibly be calling at 5 o'clock in the morning. Knowing the instant she heard his voice that the savage had

Secret Power Possessed by Some People

By the Rev. J. F. Newton

"DO you believe in a sixth sense?" asks a reader. "Let me explain by telling an incident as it happened to me. Let it or not, here is the fact as it actually happened, and I know it is true."

"Not long ago, while on a little trip with my wife we overtook an old woman and gave her a lift in our car. She had a swarthy face, a shawl over her head, and turned out to be a kindly old gypsy woman."

"As we set her down she thanked us and said, 'before sunset there will be a dead man in this car.' We received the cheerful news in silence and drove on. Naturally we talked about the information."

"Later we came to the scene of a horrible accident, and we were asked to take an injured man to the hospital. We agreed, of course, but the man died on the way—a dead man in the car before sunset."

"Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size."

"How did that old gypsy woman know it would be so? Did she have a sixth sense by which she fore-saw, or foretold, the coming event? It's too much for me, nor does it fit into my philosophy, but it is a fact."

"All is mystery, of course, but there is that certain people have uncanny gifts, whose minds function on a wavelength not usual to most of us. Honestly, I give it up, but it has made me think a lot."

"The guess my reader makes is as good as any, perhaps; but there is no doubt about the fact. All of us can bear similar testimony—we hesitate to do so, because people may think we are off in the head."

"Dr. Alexius Carrel, in his new book, 'Man, the Unknown,' admits the fact of such clairvoyance, both as regards nearby and facts far off. Some human beings have this uncanny capacity, and that is that."

"All of us may have it, potentially; but some have a certain sensitiveness to the future and the unseen. In some degree it is the secret power of the artist, the poet, the seer, and even the man of science."

"Yes, there is a sixth sense—may be six hundred, for all we know—whereby the soul may know without seeing, and be sure without proving. It is a fact, whether it fits into our dumb philosophy or not."

head to remind him of his adventure with the little Aztec.

Milly told herself she had been absolutely right in refusing to meet him and rose, determined to think of him no more.

As she slipped into her mother's room she saw that Myra was sleeping. That was good. Millicent would leave a note for Julia, who came every morning at 10, to be careful not to wake her.

A shower and the clean feeling of fresh clothes restored her. Millicent prepared her own coffee and orange juice, turning on the oven for heat. It was cold but it was a gorgeous day. The view from the living room window was a sweeping vista of gray blues.

Millicent stood for a moment admiring it before she put on her polished blue straw hat. She had worn her new blue dress with a desire to counteract any mental sluggishness with a smart appearance. Carefully she knotted the long tassels of the braided collar and belt. There was no sign of fatigue in the bright blue eyes or the quizzical unlined face beneath the upturned hat. Nor was there any apparent inefficiency in her work. From 9 till 12 the slender, clever fingers moved across her drawing board, but when noon closing time came Millicent sighed with relief, glad of a chance to escape, even from an occupation which fascinated her.

The Chester Moulton Dress Co. created typically California clothes. Their product was unknown away from the Pacific Coast but since the depression they had done a steadily increasing business. Although Millicent had turned to dress designing as a necessary means of support she did not consider it beneath her as her mother did.

But there were times, and this was one of them, when she felt stripped of ideas. It had been difficult to concentrate on the lines of a pastel tinted spectator sport ensemble when her inner vision was still glowing with more violent colors. Strands of purple, turquoise and orange hung like a barbaric tapestry against the background of her mind.

It was good to leave the factory. To walk briskly toward the street car which would take her back to her apartment.

A voice, the same voice she realized now had been ringing in her ears all morning, called, "Good afternoon, Miss Bates! May I give you a lift?"

It was the savage, looking impeccably civilized in dark business clothes. Only the gray challenging eyes seemed to be the same.

"Please!" he reminded her. "You said you would if we happened to run into each other."

She climbed into his car thinking,

Baby Cub's Mother Had Disappeared Explains Infant

By Mary Graham Bonner

"I THOUGHT you'd never, never come," whimpered the little baby cub. "I tried to be brave, I kept so still, but then I became frightened and I cried a little."

"I did try so hard not to cry, but to be quite as you told me to be, You're not angry that I did cry a little, are you, Mother dear?"

"No, no, mother's not angry. How could she be angry with her little cub?" asked Honey Bear.

She held the cub in her arms and rocked, his body which was now growing fur and which had lost its skinny new-born look. And the cub's eyes were open, too, but had evidently not been open for long. He was still too young, too weak, to walk out into the world.

A Long Short Voyage
The Daily Short Story

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

—People who want to remain permanently in love must deliberately plan for keeping the sentimental side of life alive—evelings out together, common recreations—with occasional separate recreations so as to keep interesting to one another—little excursions—and an occasional "big bust" as a second—or fortieh—honeymoon if that be financially possible. To express romance to keep flanking around the kitchen sink, cook stove, and cradle with no outside adventure or excitement is to expect too much of human nature. Cupid is a sturdy little fellow, but he just naturally hates the sight of a dishrag or to turn a clothes wringer.

—Not only "many," but vast numbers of people take this method of escaping the responsibility of competing with others and asserting themselves. It is a defense device to cover up their fear that they will be defeated if they allow themselves to compete in knowledge or skill with others. You often hear people stoutly assert they have no mathematical ability or that they cannot understand politics, or classical music or cannot play golf or bridge well, etc., and explain they consider themselves "naturally stupid" in these directions, but this is usually downright laziness or a fear of defeat.

3. OLD SAYING, "A PUN IS THE LOWEST FORM OF HUMOR." CORRECT? INCORRECT?

Nobody knows, simply because the psychology of humor is almost an unexplored field. Three or four psychologists have recently devised tests of the sense of humor, but they admit they have only touched the fringe of this immense field of the mental and emotional life. We do not know whether it shows more or less intelligence to laugh at a pun or at a man slipping on a banana skin or an Englishman who can't see our jokes.
